Dear [NAME],

I hope you are well!

We would like to invite you to continue your participation in a special study called the Mobility Opportunity Vouchers to Eliminate Diabetes and Obesity (MOVED) Study. Researchers from Johns Hopkins are working with Abt Global to conduct this study. The US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the National Institutes of Health are funding the study. You may remember taking part in surveys with our team or having us visit your home to measure your and your child's height, weight, and waist circumference. At that time, we told you that we would like to do these assessments again two years later. It has now been about two years, and we're reaching out for this follow-up assessment!

As a reminder, the study tries to help us understand how the neighborhoods people live in impact their health. We want to learn how neighborhoods affect people's chances of type II diabetes, their weight and other aspects of their health and life. The study will also help us learn more about children's health and behavior. The goal of this research is to help create policies that make families healthier.

We sent you a letter about participating in the MOVED study. I've attached a copy of the letter, which has more information about the study.

There are several activities we will ask you and your child to complete again as part of the MOVED study. You will receive a gift card for each activity you and your child complete.

You and your child can receive a gift card up to $185 if you participate in all parts of the study. You can receive another $70 if you and your child are asked to wear an activity monitor.

You can choose whether or not to continue participating in the MOVED study. Your participation in this study is completely voluntary. Your housing assistance will not be affected if you do not participate. It will also not affect your participation in the Community Choice Demonstration.

If you have any questions or would like to schedule your interview, please contact Rachel Deitch by phone at 443-287-6553 or by email at moved@jh.edu. If you require information to be presented in an accessible format or reasonable accommodations to participate in this study, please contact us with any specific requests. If you require language assistance to participate in this study, please contact us with any specific language assistance requests or needs.

On behalf of the research team, we look forward to talking with you soon.

Sincerely,
XXX
