A. Justification

1. Necessity of Information Collection

ATF is charged with the responsibility for enforcing Title XI of the Organized Crime Control Act (the Act) of 1970 and the implementing regulations contained at 27 CFR, Part 555. Subtitle C of Public Law No. 107-296, the Safe Explosives Act, enacted November 25, 2003, amended the Act to create a limited permit for certain persons wishing to obtain explosives. The regulations at 27 CFR, Section 555.126 require that, prior to distributing explosive materials to a limited permittee, a licensee or permittee must obtain an original ATF F 5400.4. The original of the form must be retained by the distributor as part of his permanent records, and the second copy must be faxed or mailed to ATF. Finally, the transferor must retain the form as specified in the regulations. This information collection ensures that the records are available for tracing explosives when necessary.

2. Needs and Uses

This information collection is a recordkeeping requirement. The collection will be used to ensure that records are available for tracing explosives when necessary, and to ensure that limited permit holders do not receive explosives on more than 6 occasions during the term of their permit.

3. Use of Information Technology

The original documentation is retained by the distributor as a permanent record. The second copy of the documentation can be faxed to ATF.

4. Efforts to Identify Duplication

ATF uses a uniform subject classification system to identify duplication and to ensure that any similar information already available cannot be used or modified for use for the purpose of this information collection.

There are no special circumstances with regard to this information collection. The requirements are conducted in a manner consistent with 5 CFR 1320.6.
