No. The seminar evaluation form is used to obtain feedback from seminar participants. To ensure that the participants give immediate feedback, it is important that the participants fill out the evaluation forms during the course of the program, rather than waiting to fill out the forms at a later date via the Internet.

- (2) Will the information be made available to the public through the Internet? If not, why not? Please briefly outline the potential for future dissemination of this information electronically.

BIS does not intend to make all of this information available to the public. Information obtained by the collection is used to improve the BIS's outreach program seminar and would not likely be of general interest to the public. However, some statistical results or data may be published in a report that might be made available on the BIS web site.
