1. Not aware of any other public source other than the EPA Website.
2. The instructions are very clear on what to do and how to submit the form.
3. Yes, very clear
4. Yes - believe this is a very good idea. Currently not using any type of electronic reporting/recording options.
5. Yes, some type of security measure should be in place.
6. Whatever is easiest for the Agency
7. There is no CBI information submitted in supplemental distributor forms. However, would be even more inclined if there was the allowance to submit the form to the Agency as a PDF attachment via email.
8. Yes, that is about the average cost.
9. No, could not think of any other costs that should be accounted for that may have been missed, and burden and cost substantially the same as EPA's.

Response: “I’ve reviewed the ICR Renewal for notification of supplemental registration and concur with the information provided by Wendy McCombie in 2003 and have no further comments at this time.”

Wendy McCombie consultation response for 2003:

1. No - download it from EPA’s website
2. The instructions are very clear on what to do and how to submit the form.
3. Same as answer to question 2.
4. Yes - believe this is a very good idea. Currently not using any type of electronic reporting/recording options.
5. Would prefer passwords if submitting electronic signatures
6. It doesn’t matter.
7. There is no CBI information submitted in supplemental distributor forms
8. Yes, I think that would be about average.
9. No, could not think of any other costs that should be accounted for that may have been missed, and our burden and costs are substantially the same as EPA’s.

1. Still download from EPA pesticides website.
2. I suggest that the submission address be provided somewhere in the form; I suggest this information be placed in the "Instructions" section, immediately after "This Notice of Supplemental Distribution must be submitted by the basic registrant." Otherwise, the instructions are clear overall.
3. Yes, the form is clear, logical and easy to complete.
4. Yes, I would be interested in submitting the form electronically. It is very simple these days to scan documents and email them. Sending the completed form in pdf format would save courier expenses and speed up the signature and submission processes.
5. I have no security concerns about signatures. It is pretty standard practice nowadays to email as much as possible, including signed documents.
6. Once again, I have no security concerns regarding signed documents or signatures.
7. There is no CBI presented on this form.
8. The burden rate (approximately 15 minutes) is a good estimate.
9. No other costs are associated with the preparation of this form.
