Survey Data Groups

Some data needed by the Department to meet information needs cannot be obtained from the State Education Agencies (SEAs). The data groups in this section represent information that schools and/or LEAs will provide directly to EDEN through the use of an on-line survey. To the extent possible, portions of the on-line form are pre-populated with data from other EDEN data groups (e.g., demographic, school name, and address) thereby reducing respondent burden. Additionally, ED is examining the possibility of SEAs providing information on some of the survey items themselves for the sampled LEAs and schools, further diminishing respondent burden.

This section will be used to collect data for two surveys: the Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC) for the Office of Civil Rights (OCR) and the Indian Education Formula Grant Program (IEFGP) Student Count for the Office of Indian Education (OIE). Each of these surveys is described in detail below.

Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC)

The CRDC is an on-line survey of a sample of LEAs. The justification statement contains a full explanation of the sampling approach used for this survey. The upcoming survey requests data on school years 2005-06 and 2006-07. In fall 2006, the LEAs selected in the sample for the Civil Right Data Collection will be sent a notification letter. That letter will request that the LEA provide two contacts including telephone numbers and e-mail addresses. ED is planning to set up a web-based form to collect the contact information. The LEA will also submit the survey through a web-based tool unless the LEA lacks sufficient technology to efficiently use the tool, in which case the LEA can submit the survey on paper forms. LEAs may also request to submit the survey through electronic files formatted in accordance with instructions provided by ED.

As noted above, the survey will include some questions where the data can be pre-populated from files submitted by SEAs thereby reducing respondent burden. Specifically, the table below shows the data groups SEAs would need to submit in order to provide the CRDC respondents in their state with the available pre-population. This information will be pre-populated into the on-line survey if the SEA submits the data up to one month prior to the start of the survey. If the SEA is unable to provide any or all of the data groups required for pre-population, then the data will be requested directly from the LEA.

Although the Department proposes collecting these data groups directly from the LEAs in 2006 (and has historically collected similar data directly from LEAs for the purpose of the Civil Rights collection), it is our intent to move this collection to the EDEN Submission System in the future and ask state education agencies to submit the data for their LEAs. We plan to specify in our 2007-08 paperwork submission request that all Civil Rights data groups and categories be included in the EDEN Submission System beginning with 2007-08. During a transition period through 2008-09, for states that are unable to report required Civil Rights items from the SEA level through EDEN, the Department will continue to use the Web-based EDEN Survey Tool or other mechanism to collect these data directly from LEAs in these states.

Even with pre-population, there is information required for the CRDC that is not available to most SEAs. As a result, the following 33 data groups will be included in EDEN for 2006-07 to collect data directly from the CRDC sample of LEAs. A separate page for each of these data groups is in this section. These data groups are labeled “Survey-Civil Rights” with OCR as a steward. The comment section indicates which school year is submitted for each of these data groups.

Indian Education Formula Grant Program (IEFGP) Student Count

The IEFGP student count is an on-line survey designed specifically to obtain the number of eligible children for purposes of allocating the Indian Education Formula Grant Program funds. Directory data such as Name, Address, IDs will be pre-populated from EDEN and the Department's Grants Administration and Payment System. In addition, the student enrollment will be pre-populated when available from the SEA. The remaining data will be provided by the LEA. The table below lists the data requested for the 2006-07 Student Count.

IEFGP Student Count Proposed Data Groups for 2006-07

On-Line Data Collection Data Groups

A number of program offices in ED have reporting mandates for information that is general, state-level information that could be updated once a year. These information requests do not align with the general guidelines for EDEN Submission System (ESS) data groups and data categories. For example, the Office of English Language Acquisition (OELA) needs to know (at the state level) the testing accommodations that are (and are not) provided to limited English proficient (LEP) students on state academic achievement standards. Unlike the data collected using the ESS data groups (which collect data using sequential flat files), this information is substantially less complex and can be collected directly using an on-line tool. States would update the data by logging into the EDEN system and complete the appropriate forms once a year. This change will minimize state burden by removing the ESS data file submission step but still provide the program offices with the information they need.

A total of 7 existing data groups are being moved to the on-line data collection section. The remainder of this section includes a separate page for each data group.

Meta Data

EDEN will collect meta data in the following two main areas: State Specific Information Needed to Interpret Data and State Submission Plans. As the EDEN data set matures in future years, the meta data will become a critical component of cross-year and cross-state comparisons.

For the most part, ED plans to collect the meta data through a series of on-line forms. States would log into a sub-application within EDEN, and view forms that have been pre-populated with data from the previous cycle. This is possible because in many cases, the same information applies to more than one year. States would then have the option to update/revise/affirm the information, as appropriate.

State Specific Information Needed to Interpret Data

Much of the data states provide through EDEN can only be accurately interpreted within the state context. In the examples below, the EDEN data users must rely heavily on the additional information in order to properly interpret state submissions. In fact, with some of these examples, the data have very little value without the additional meta data.

State Definitions. Some of the definitions of EDEN Data Groups include references to state definitions. For example, Data Group #521 Vocational Concentrators Tables collects the unduplicated number of vocational concentrators. Since each State defines the threshold level for vocational education to be a vocational concentrators, the definition of vocational concentrator is essential to using and reporting the data."

General SEA Information. There are a number of basic components of state education systems that differ from one state to the next, for example:

- School year/ start of school year – SEAs will be asked what 12 month period of time that defines a school year. The school year is often but not always October 1 through September 30.
- Charter School Legislation –will be asked when the State approved Charter School legislation. ED will pre-populate based on information already collected.
- Special Education Count Date – SEAs will be asked what specific date the child count required by IDEA was conducted.
- Directory - SEAs will be asked to update a general description of the education units in the State that was developed during previous State site visits.

Assessment. Each state has in place a state assessment system that is unique to that state. In order to properly interpret the data submitted on this subject, users of the data need information beyond the counts of students by performance level including:

- Performance levels – SEAs will be asked how each performance levels maps to "proficient" in NCLB.
- Instrument – SEAs will be asked for a description of the assessment instruments such as academic subjects and grades covered as well as the basic test administrative procedures and processes for handling the results.
- Accommodations – SEAs will be asked what accommodations are available/provided to students and under what circumstances.
- Timing – SEAs will be asked when the assessment was conducted, e.g. November or April.

AYP Reporting. As is the case with the previous examples, AYP reporting includes components that are state specific and when known help to inform interpretation of state data submissions, including:

- Full Academic Year – SEAs will be asked what period of time a student is at school for inclusion in AYP reporting.
- Targets – SEAs will be asked for the target percentage of students proficient under NCLB by school year.

State Submission Plans

Starting with the 2005-06 EDEN data set, states were asked to complete a data submission plan that provided information on when they were planning to submit each EDEN data file, as well as an estimate regarding the number of schools or LEAs that would be included in each file. This information is necessary in order to monitor state progress and determine when states complete their submissions for each data file. Additionally, states can use the submission plans to track the data source within their SEA for each data file. Many states reported that the submission plans served as a useful management tool to help them schedule the work associated with EDEN file submissions.

For 2006-07, EDEN plans to include this information as part of the on-line collection of meta data. If states provided the EDEN team with their 2005-06 submission plan, the on-line tool would be pre-populated with the 2005-06 submission plan information and states would update the information for 2006-07. Additionally states will have access to reports within EDFacts that allow them to easily review the status of their submission plan as well as the status of their submissions in relation to the plan.

As part of the submission plans, ED plans to ask states to provide information in 3 additional areas:

1. The extent to which each state will be able to provide the files necessary to pre-populate several other data collections including Civil Rights Data Collection (CRDC), Charter Schools, the Title III Evaluation Report, the Indian Education Formula Grant Program (IEFGP), and the Consolidated State Performance Report (CSPR).

2. Whether they will be able to provide graduates and dropout data for 2005-06 through EDEN (as part of the CCD/EDEN merger).
3. The state's information management system, for example, whether a state has a student wide database.

This additional information will be used to inform the development and implementation of the ESS and other applications as well as to inform the development and coding efforts through the development phase of the on-line applications.
