

C. State Fiscal Data

This Appendix includes State-specific data on the following sources of LIHEAP funds that were available for obligation in FY 2004 (see table C-1, Appendix C):

- State allotments of the regular LIHEAP block funds and emergency contingency funds for FY 2004;
- LIHEAP carryover from FY 2003;
- FY 2004 LIHEAP leveraging incentive awards;
- unobligated FY 2003 LIHEAP leveraging incentive awards; and
- FY 2004 REACH funds.

This Appendix also includes State-specific information on the uses of LIHEAP funds, household average benefits, and maximum income cutoffs for 4-person households for FY 2004 (see tables C-2 and C-3, Appendix C; table I-3, Appendix I).

The fiscal data were gathered from the State estimates obtained from the LIHEAP Grantee Survey for FY 2004, as described in Appendix A of this report. Estimates are less burdensome and more timely than reporting actual figures. As estimates, the fiscal data are subject to change. However, the Department has found these estimates to be reasonably accurate guides to actual performance.

The majority of obligated funds are expended during the Federal fiscal year. However, remaining obligated funds can be expended in the following fiscal year or later.

Uniform Federal definitions were not imposed on the States. The Department has left States maximum flexibility under the block grant statutes to design and run programs suited to their own assessments of their citizens' needs. For this reason, most of the definitions to be used in the States' administration of their LIHEAP programs are determined by the States. Similarly, no uniform definition of such key terms as "administrative costs" and "low-cost weatherization" were employed in the LIHEAP grantee survey. Some variation in the meaning of State responses must be expected. Thus, comparison of State fiscal estimates should be viewed cautiously.

<sup>2</sup>California, Colorado, Montana, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming received waivers for FY 2004 that increased from 15% to up to 25% the maximum amount of LIHEAP funds allotted or available for weatherization or other energy-related home repair. Some States may appear to exceed the 15% limit by using leveraging incentive awards for weatherization activities.

<sup>4</sup>LIHEAP funds used to provide services that encourage and enable households to reduce their home energy needs and thereby the need for energy assistance, including needs assessments, counseling and assistance with energy vendors.

<sup>5</sup>The Residential Energy Assistance Challenge (REACH) program is designed to help low income households reduce their energy vulnerability.

<sup>6</sup>Combined heating and cooling assistance provided in Arizona, California, District of Columbia and Nevada; energy assistance provided in Hawaii with no differentiation made between heating and cooling assistance. States reported funds under heating assistance.

<sup>7</sup>Crisis assistance includes $10,180,066 for emergency furnace repair and replacement.

<sup>8</sup>Crisis assistance includes $4,120,323 for Safety Net Benefits of up to $200 per authorization to households that had exhausted both their heating assistance and winter crisis benefits, were in a life-threatening situation, and were unable to secure shelter with adequate heat.

<sup>9</sup>Households in crisis situations received expedited fuel assistance.

<sup>1</sup>Household average benefits were gathered from the State estimates obtained from the LIHEAP Grantee Survey for FY 2004, as described in Appendix A of this report. States were not asked to estimate household average benefits for weatherization assistance. Such estimates would not be comparable to estimated average benefits for the other types of LIHEAP assistance due to the relatively larger role of labor and other support costs involved in weatherization and wide variations in how States define low-cost weatherization. The data do not reflect average benefits for furnace repair/ replacement or for purchase of air conditioners.

<sup>2</sup>Includes household average benefits for those States which operated year-round (i.e., 10-12 months) crisis programs. Excludes average household benefits for emergency furnace repairs or replacements which ranged from $131 to $1,383.

<sup>3</sup>Combined heating and cooling assistance provided in Arizona, California, the District of Columbia, and Nevada; energy assistance provided in Hawaii with no differentiation made between heating and cooling assistance. States reported funds under heating assistance.

<sup>4</sup>Excludes average household benefit of $1,100 for emergency furnace repair or replacement.

<sup>5</sup>Represents the average household benefit for those households receiving Safety Net Benefits provided to those households that had exhausted their heating and winter crisis assistance benefits, and were in a life-threatening situation.
