The screenshot shows the U.S. Census Bureau website homepage. At the top, there is a navigation bar with "Search", "Subjects A to Z", "FAQs", and "Help". Below this is a "Data Finders" section with "Population Clocks" showing U.S. and World population counts, and "Latest Economic Indicator" for Homeownership. The main content area is divided into several sections: "Questions?" with a search box, "People" with links to various demographic data, "Business" with links to economic data, "Geography" with links to maps and gazetteers, "Newsroom" with links to releases and facts, and "Special Topics" with links to the census calendar and training. On the left side, there is a vertical navigation menu with links like "New on the Site", "Data Tools", "American FactFinder", "Jobs@Census", "Catalog", "Publications", "Are You in a Survey?", "About the Bureau", "Regional Offices", "Doing Business with Us", and "Related Sites". At the bottom, there is a footer with the U.S. Census Bureau logo and various policy links.

Search for Census Bureau Information Quickly and Easily!

Now there's no need to know about Census Bureau programs or terminology when looking for information on-line. Search the Census Bureau's web site for information in three ways:

1. Use the Search feature — now powered by Google™ — on the blue side-bar and enter a keyword.
2. Browse frequently asked questions and answers at our Question and Answer Center by choosing your topic of interest and hitting "Go".
3. Go to Subjects A-Z at the top of the blue side-bar and click on the first letter of your topic of interest.

No matter which method you use to search the Census Bureau's web site, you'll find accurate answers to frequently asked questions such as:

- Where do I go to get international trade statistics?
- Does the Census Bureau have genealogical information?
- What correlation is there between the new North American Industrial Classification System (NAICS) and the old SIC codes?
- How is the information used from Census 2000?
- What does the Census Bureau do when it is not counting the population?
- What materials do you have for school teachers and children?
