Investigators' statement

We are asking you to be in a research study being conducted by the University of Washington's Information School and sponsored by the US government's Institute for Museum and Library Services. The purpose of this consent form is to give you the information you will need to help you decide whether or not to be in the study. Please read the form carefully. You may ask questions about the purpose of the research, what we would ask you to do, the possible risks and benefits, your rights as a volunteer, and anything else about the research or this form that is not clear. When all your questions have been answered, you can decide if you want to be in the study or not. This process is called 'informed consent.'

PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

We want to know more about how people use computers and the Internet in public libraries. I would like to ask you some questions by yourself about your experiences with using the Library's free access to computers and the Internet.

PROCEDURES

If you choose to be in this study, I would like to interview you about your experiences with using with using the Library's public access computing. The interview will last about 20-30 minutes and will focus on the different services that you have tried. For example, I will ask you "What types of computer and Internet services have you tried at the Library?" "What skills have you learned?" "How have you benefited from using computers and the Internet at the Library?" and "How do you think the computers and the Internet could be improved? You do not have to answer every question.

During the interview, you may refuse to answer any question. The interview will be audio recorded and transcribed. The audio recording of your voice will be destroyed within 6 weeks of being recorded. Only members of the research team listed above will have access to this potentially sensitive information.

RISKS, STRESS, OR DISCOMFORT

Some people feel that providing information for research is an invasion of privacy. I have addressed concerns for your privacy in the section below.

ALTERNATIVES TO TAKING PART IN THIS STUDY

Taking part in this study is voluntary. If you decline, I will not interview you for this study.

BENEFITS OF STUDY

We hope the results of this study will help us better understand how public access computing at libraries helps people and their communities. You may not directly benefit from taking part in this research study.

OTHER INFORMATION

Taking part in this study is voluntary. You can stop at any time. Information about you is confidential except as provided by law. I will code the study information. I will keep the link between your name and the code in a separate, secured location until May 2009. Then I will destroy the link. If the results of this study are published or presented, we will not use your name. You will receive $20 after the interview.

Government or university staffs sometimes review studies such as this one to make sure they are being done safely and legally. If a review of this study takes place, your records may be examined. The reviewers will protect your privacy. The study records will not be used to put you at legal risk of harm.

If you have any questions about this research study, please contact Karen Fisher at the telephone number or e-mail listed above. If you have any questions about your rights as a research subject, please contact the University of Washington Human Subjects Division: 206-543-0098.
