

Attachment H: Debriefing Statement

Although you were led to believe that you would be helping us evaluate the online version of the ACS itself, we were actually only interested in the login portion of the survey for this study. Some participants were given the option to create a User ID and password in addition to the ACS ID and password, while some were simply required to do it. We were interested in whether people would complete the online survey in the option vs. required conditions, and how long it took them to reach the actual survey. We appreciate your assistance in helping us decide how to design the login portion of the online ACS interface. Do you have any questions or comments? Thank you very much for your time and participation.
