This spring 15-year-old students from around the world will participate in an international test known as PISA. This is part of a larger study that will take place in the fall of 2009. You have been selected to be part of a group of U.S. students who will represent the U.S. this spring.

Participation in PISA will have no impact on your grades or graduation requirements. The results will be used to compare what U.S. students know with other students from around the world.
