Dear Partners of the National Public Health Initiative on Diabetes and Women's Health:

A few months ago, the National Public Health Initiative on Diabetes and Women's Health (Initiative) announced that a survey was about to be released to identify national efforts aimed at implementing strategies for diabetes and women's health across several areas: community health, communication and education, quality care, and research and surveillance. This survey is currently available on www.xxx.com.

The Initiative—which is co-sponsored by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the American Diabetes Association, the American Association of Diabetes Educators, the American Public Health Association, and the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials—is interested in developing a national report that would highlight those activities that partners have implemented which complement the objectives set forth by the Initiative.

If you have completed the survey online already, the co-sponsors of the Initiative would like to thank you for participating in this survey.

If you have not had a chance to complete the survey, we wanted to remind you that the survey is still available online. Participation in the survey is voluntary. If you are interested in completing the survey, please visit the following link: www.xxx.org. It will take only about 30 minutes of your time. You do not have to answer every question and can skip those that you do not feel comfortable answering. Your individual responses will not be linkable to any information that identifies you. The mechanism for collecting survey information is SurveyMonkey, a secure Website that meets the Safe Harbor and EU Data Protection Requirements.

The survey will be available from {Month, Day, Year} to {Month, Day, Year}.

Please feel free to contact Dr. Michelle Owens-Gary at Centers for Disease Control and Prevention at 770-488-5014 or MOwens1@cdc.gov for more information about the National Public Health Initiative on Diabetes and Women's Health. Please also visit our Web site at www.cdc.gov/diabetes/projects/women.htm.

Sincerely,

Michelle D. Owens-Gary, Ph.D.
