ANSWERS TO COMMON QUESTIONS

How did you pick me?

Working with USDA and the School Nutrition Association, we compiled a list of child nutrition professionals who work at schools that participate in one of the USDA's programs. Using the list, we randomly placed phone calls to potential participants and invited them to participate.

What is a focus group?

A focus group is really just a small group of people talking about different issues or topics. It's a directed discussion based on questions posed by the discussion leader. In this case, it will be around six to eight people. We'll have a few questions for the group to discuss, but mostly you'll talk to each other about the things you have in common.

What if I don't want to give my address for mailing information?

It is important that everyone who is going to participate in the focus group receive the information we will be sending. We are not connected to any other organization, and your name and address will not be given to anyone else. We will not be sending your address to anyone or sharing it with any other organization. If you prefer, we could mail this to your work or to another address. If you want to confirm this project, you can call the NAME OF ORGANIZATION at PHONE NUMBER.

What are the differentiators that help characterize "suburban" versus "urban" versus "rural"?

By urban, I mean within or near a major city. By suburban, I mean within the greater metropolitan area, but outside the city center. And by rural, I mean outside a major metropolitan area, which includes the city center and surrounding suburbs.
