| Question    | During the last 12 months, did you study for this degree or certificate during paid working hours or outside paid working hours? If you were given paid leave for all or part of your study for this degree or certificate, this should be counted as working hours. Would that be ...   |                                   |
| Instruction | 1. This question refers to the degree that the study takes place during paid working hours, meaning that the working hours are used to study for the degree or certificate rather than for actually working. It also includes the case where a number of working hours are being replaced by study even if the studying itself takes place outside normal working time of the respondent. 2. If the study takes place outside working time and the respondent has received payment for the hours or additional leisure hours, the study should be coded as "during paid working hours". The answer should only reflect the participation in classes, tutorials etc. and not homework. 3. Read categories to respondent |                                   |

| Instruction | 1. Courses are typically subject oriented and taught by persons specialized in the field(s) concerned. They can take the form of classroom instruction (sometimes in combination with practice in real or simulated situations) or lectures, and are conducted face-to-face. 2. If the person delivering private lessons has a teacher-student relationship with the respondent this question should be coded as "yes". If the provider/tutor is assisting the learner as a friend, family member or other social relationship it should be coded as "no". |    |     |    |    |        |    |    |    |

| Help        | This type of training is characterized by planned periods of training, instruction or practical experience, using normal tools of work. It is usually organized by the employer to facilitate orientation of (new) staff. It may include general training about the company as well as specific job-related instructions (safety and health hazards, working practices). This includes for instance organized training or instructions by management, supervisors or co-workers to help the respondent to do his/her job better or to introduce him/her to new tasks, but can also take place in the presence of a tutor. |

It also includes the case where a number of working hours are being replaced by the learning activity even if the activity itself takes place outside normal working time of the respondent. 2. | Help        | "Business" refers to more or less continuous and coherent settings within which one works for oneself. It could refer to an actual business enterprise like a farm or a factory, but also in the case of freelancers to a line of work whereby one provides a similar set of products or services to one or more clients. Short periods in which the respondent is idle because no orders have been received, but is available to perform the same kind of work, should be counted as part of the same 'business'. If the respondent returns to the same kind of work after a significant period in which he or she has not been available, this should be counted as a different 'business'. |                       |                              |                       |        |    |  |    |    |  |  |

| Question    | How many employees do you supervise or manage directly or indirectly?Would that be ...  |
| Instruction | Read categories to respondent   |
| Help        | 'Directly' refers to a situation in which employees are directly accountable to the respondent. For example, a general manager of a firm may supervise three managers directly, giving them orders or instructions, and checking to see whether these have been followed. 'Indirectly' refers to a situation in which employees are not directly accountable to the respondent, but are accountable to another person who falls under the chain of command of the respondent. For example, if each of the three managers directly supervised by the general manager supervises 10 people, the general manager will supervise 3 people directly plus 30 people indirectly. In this case, the correct answer would be 33 people (25 to 99 people). If the 10 people supervised by the managers each |

| Help      | A formal performance evaluation would usually involve an appointment being made for a meeting with e.g. a supervisor or personnel officer in which one's performance in the preceding period (often a year, but could be a longer or a shorter period) is systematically discussed and evaluated. | Help      | By regular feedback we mean performance-related information given informally by the supervisor, either while the respondent is carrying out a given set of tasks or shortly after the tasks have been completed. This feedback will typically convey information on how well the respondent is performing the tasks, areas in which the respondent is performing well, areas in which the respondent's performance could be improved, mistakes the respondent needs to correct, and |    |     |        |    |        |    |    |    |
