Nature of Research Activity:

The Current Population Survey (CPS) is a monthly survey of the civilian non-institutionalized population, including a total of 55,000 household interviews conducted by the Census Bureau for the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The CPS has been conducted for more than 50 years and is the primary source of information on the labor force characteristics of the U.S. population. The purpose of the current research activity is to conduct the Tobacco Use Supplement to the Current Population Survey in 2010-2011, which will be used for
