CMS Response to Public Comments Received for CMS-10197

The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) received five comments on CMS-10197, which pertains to data collection for the Evaluation of the National DMEPOS Competitive Bidding Program. The comments contained numerous useful suggestions, and we have revised the data collection instruments and data collection plan in response. Below is a summary of the specific comments and our response to each one.

1. GENERAL COMMENTS

Comment: Problems with oxygen payment levels that create oxygen classes which pay most for the least expensive devices, and less for the most expensive devices that encourage ambulation.

Comment: Payment system is outdated and the CMN requires physicians to speculate about the oxygen a patient is actually getting, based on an outdated form.

Response:

This request for public comment deals specifically with CMS's information collection plans for an evaluation study of the national DME competitive bidding program. Comments about the program itself are outside the scope of the information collection solicitation.

Comment: Survey form after competitive bidding does not reference need for some beneficiaries to change suppliers

Response:

We would first like to clarify the timing of data collection for the evaluation. The survey design is a before/after study in which we will survey beneficiaries in competitive bidding areas and non-competitive bidding areas twice. Competitive bidding goes into effect January 1, 2011. In order to obtain accurate measures of the state of quality, access and beneficiary satisfaction in the study areas, our survey plan is to conduct the first survey before competitive bidding (mid-2010) and the second survey at least one year after competitive bidding begins. We believe that waiting at least one year will allow a fresh population of new users of DMEPOS to accumulate, as well as allow us to sample a period when the competitive bidding market has returned to stability after the transition. In this way, we hope to achieve an unbiased comparison of the state of quality, access, and beneficiary satisfaction between the two time points. The following describes the timing and contents of each wave of data collection.

Surveys

Survey Wave 1	mid-2010
Survey Wave 2	mid-2012

Qualitative Data Collection (focus groups, interviews)

Wave 1	mid-2010 (focus groups and interviews)
Wave 2	transition early 2011 (newly added) (interviews)
Wave 3	mid-2011 (interviews)

Many of the survey questions ask about initial experiences with suppliers: finding a supplier, obtaining DMEPOS products and services, quality of those products and services, and so on. To minimize recall bias, the survey population will be beneficiaries who began using their DMEPOS products within the nine months prior to survey administration. Thus baseline survey respondents (surveyed in the summer of 2010) will have begun using their products after September, 2009, and follow-up survey respondents (surveyed in 2012) will have begun using their products after January 1, 2011. Neither the baseline respondent group, nor the follow-up respondent group will have experienced the transition period. It therefore is not possible to survey beneficiaries about the transition.

In response to this comment, we have added response categories to a survey question to capture whether a respondent changed suppliers because the supplier became ineligible to provide the equipment. This response category could address circumstances such as those pointed out by the commenter, as well as (rare) circumstances where suppliers are sanctioned, lose accreditation, or otherwise are excluded from the Medicare program. We expect little change in the frequency of this response between baseline and follow-up surveys, due to the timing of the survey administrations and the fact that respondents will all be relatively new DMEPOS users, none of whom will have experienced the transition.

Old Question:

Why did you make these changes? (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ Equipment needed to be replaced because it did not work
 - ₂ My condition/breathing changed
 - ₃ I found new equipment that was better for me
 - ₄ Equipment no longer available through supplier
 - ₅ Supplier told me Medicare no longer covered equipment
 - ₆ Doctor prescribed a different type of equipment
 - ₉₉ Other, please specify:

New Question:

If you have different oxygen equipment, why did you make a change? (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ Equipment needed to be replaced because it did not work
- ₂ My condition/breathing changed
- ₃ I found new equipment that was better for me
- ₄ My supplier became ineligible to provide my equipment under Medicare
- ₅ My supplier told me Medicare no longer covered equipment
- ₆ Doctor prescribed a different type of equipment
- ₇ My supplier did not tell me why they changed my equipment
- ₉₉ Other, please specify:

Comment: Grandfathering policy should be extended to enteral nutrition and evaluation research should collect data on grandfathering policy impact on enteral nutrition patients, including possible adverse health outcomes.

Response:

The commenter recommends that surveys should address the grandfathering concern for enteral nutrition users. We have determined that conducting a survey of enteral nutrition users is not feasible, for several reasons. Many users of enteral nutrition products reside in nursing homes, and it is not clear if data collected from nursing home residents or their proxies would be consistent with data collected from Medicare beneficiaries living at home. Also, there are many differences between the experiences of nursing home residents and beneficiaries who live at home with regard to obtaining DMEPOS, which would have implications for the evaluation. For example, when nursing home residents do use DMEPOS products they most often obtain these products through nursing home staff. In addition, many services such as training in the use of the equipment or maintenance may be provided by nursing home staff in addition to or instead of the DMEPOS supplier. And some DMEPOS items may not be used directly by nursing home resident. For example, the nursing home staff may use the beneficiary's diabetic supplies (e.g., monitor, test strips, and lancets, enteral nutrition products) in the care of the patient, rather than the patient using these items directly. Each of these differences could harm the validity of the survey.

Another set of reasons has to do with our survey design, in which the timing will not encompass a period when any effects from the grandfathering policy will be measurable. As described above, none of the survey respondents will have experienced the transition, and any associated issues related to grandfather. Thus, it is not feasible to query survey respondents about the grandfathering policy, as new arrangements will have been made long before the follow-up survey is conducted. Nor is it feasible for CMS to create an additional wave of the survey due to the prohibitive expense of that form of data collection.

This is not to say that the evaluation will ignore information about the transition. The commenter recommends that interviews of beneficiaries and suppliers should address the grandfathering concern. We have added a new wave of qualitative data collection, timed during the transition in early 2011, and we intend to contact representatives in approximately 16 beneficiary/disease advocacy organizations, as well as other sources in a position to witness the impact of grandfathering policy in the competitive bidding areas shortly after the new contracts go into effect. We have developed interview guides for these contacts (see Appendix C section titled: Key Informant Discussion Guide: COMPARISON AREA: Beneficiary Groups/Advocates [Wave 2] for further description of this new component of data collection we are proposing in response to this and similar comments). We also plan to collect information from the competitive bidding Ombudsman, the 1-800-Medicare call center, the CMS regional offices, Areas on Aging, and other appropriate sources to gauge whether service interruptions are widespread for enteral nutrition users, and other DMEPOS users. We will ask these sources about the volume of complaints and problems they are handling during the transition, related to grandfathering; any special education sessions or materials they distribute related to grandfathering concerns; and whether enteral nutrition users (and those using other DMEPOS products) experience access problems related specifically to grandfathering.

The commenter recommends collecting data on possible adverse health outcomes, such as deaths and prolonged hospitalization or re-hospitalization. We noted in response to our original PRA package in 2007 that tracing health outcomes to medical equipment quality is highly problematic. Frequently, there are too many intervening variables, particularly physician quality, that affect the final outcome but that cannot be accounted for in such an analysis. Further, studies can be hindered by lack of data on specific physiological measures, such as test results, which affect treatment decisions and eventually outcomes. Because of the expense and complexity of data collection required to conduct such studies, and because the state of the art for such research is not well developed, a properly conceived study, whose success is not assured, is not within the scope of the evaluation. As part of our contacts with sources in early 2011, we will attempt to collect information on these consequences to the extent interruptions in service are identified.

Comment: Report to Congress due before the evaluation is complete

Response:

The timeline for the national competitive bidding program and the schedule for Report to Congress are the prerogatives of the Congress, which enacted these provisions in Section 154 of the Medicare Improvements for Patients and Providers Act of 2008. CMS is planning its reporting on the evaluation in accordance with the law. We respectfully disagree with the implication of the commenter that the report will have no value because of its timing. Contents of the report will include savings estimates, reports of preliminary (baseline site visits), a description of the research design, and other information about the evaluation. It should be noted that other provisions of the law mandate reports from additional agencies, including the Government Accountability Office. We have indicated in the Information Collection Request that the remaining results of the evaluation will be forthcoming after additional data collection is completed. We intend to post these final evaluation reports on the CMS website.

Comment: CMS should fully incorporate views of diabetic patients and the evaluation should examine not only 'direct costs' associated with diabetes supplies, but more importantly what impact the program will have had on beneficiary access to the most commonly prescribed products and on beneficiary compliance with prescribed therapy.

Response:

To address access concerns of this and other commenters, as described above, we have added qualitative data collection in early 2011 with 16 advocacy organizations to obtain information about the transition to the new program for all types of DMEPOS products affected by competitive bidding. (Please see Wave 2 discussion guide in revised Appendix C: Non-statistical Instruments.) We also include in our plans interviews with government officials, such as the competitive bidding Ombudsman, who will be conducting outreach and program monitoring. Interviews with CMS officials at Central and Regional Offices will address the nature and extent of the outreach and education effort. Interviews with patient advocates will address the adequacy of these outreach efforts, and any problems or confusion beneficiaries encountered during the transition. Focus groups in 2010 and 2012 with suppliers and referral agents will address their perceptions before and after the transition, including the adequacy of information to prepare them for the transition. (See Appendix C: Non-statistical Instruments, Waves 1 and 4.) It should also be noted that the DMEPOS Ombudsman will prepare annual reports which should be expected to cover any problems encountered during the transition, and CMS will assemble information from the Medicare helpline regarding calls for DMEPOS competitive bidding information.

From these contacts and sources, the evaluation team expects to improve its understanding of access impacts and will include these results in the evaluation reports. The evaluation will also analyze claims to examine changes in patterns of mail order diabetic supplies and other

DMEPOS products. Access to DMEPOS is of concern and while it is not possible to directly measure access using claims data, we will use statistical models to estimate the impact of competitive bidding on Medicare expenditures, considering both changes in unit prices and changes in the volume of claims for each product category, in each competitive bidding area (as compared with changes in comparison areas). Such analyses are potentially interpretable as a type of information about access impacts. We will further report changes in estimates of out-of-pocket costs, which is a traditional measure of access. We can also use claims aggregated to the supplier level to analyze supplier statistics that are likely related to beneficiary access. Specifically, we will measure the change in the number of suppliers for each product category in each competitive bidding area, and how the change in the number of suppliers (measured in terms of number of suppliers and supplier to beneficiary ratio) of given product categories differs between the CAAs and the comparison areas.

Comment: Evaluation study should encompass how well CMS informed beneficiaries about the program and how well CMS responded to access problems.

Response:

CMS plans an extensive outreach and education campaign targeting patients, providers and suppliers, and the agency plans to monitor this outreach effort carefully. There are many components of this outreach and monitoring; for example: public presentations held by CMS Regional Office staff in the nine communities, conference calls CMS holds with advocacy organizations around the country, information about calls placed by beneficiaries to the 1-800-MEDICARE helpline, and information about complaints submitted to the DMEPOS Ombudsman. The Office of Medicare Ombudsman will submit an annual report to Congress and the Secretary of Health & Human Services (HHS) that includes the Ombudsman's recommendation for improvement in the administration of the Medicare competitive bidding program.

The evaluators plan to interview CMS officials about the implementation of competitive bidding, including the metrics of the outreach and education campaign (for example, numbers of mailings and listservs, and their volumes and timing; staff presentations at meetings and conferences; other types of contacts such as explanation of benefits messages, conference calls, complaints, and so on). Evaluators will interview, among others, the Provider communications group in the CMS Central Office, the DMEPOS Ombudsman, the Office of External Affairs, and outreach staff in CMS Regional Offices in regions that contain the first nine competitive bidding areas, as well as the competitive bidding implementation contractor (CBIC). Through these activities, the evaluation team will be collecting information about the level of effort and volumes of public education contacts with the various audiences and stakeholders in order to round out the description of the public education activities. The evaluation Report to Congress and the subsequent report on the evaluation will include these measures of process undertaken by the agency and its partners to prepare and assist beneficiaries and various stakeholders with respect to the new competitive bidding program. At this writing, these activities have already begun.

We agree with the commenter that transition issues are important, not least for what they can reveal about how CMS should implement future rounds of competitive bidding. The evaluation project has added qualitative data collection in early 2011, during the transition, to learn about adequacy of information, any disruptions due to changing suppliers, etc. The new wave of qualitative data collection in early 2011 will include about 16 advocacy organizations for all types of DMEPOS products affected by competitive bidding. The evaluators will ask these advocates about the perceived adequacy of CMS' outreach and education efforts. An additional interview guide has been prepared to gather information about these transition issues from patient advocacy organizations (see Appendix C: Non-statistical Instruments, Wave 2).

Adding a survey or other large-scale data collection to study outreach effectiveness is beyond the scope of the evaluation and its budget.

Comment: CMS should collaborate with interested organizations to help the agency address beneficiary questions and concerns during program implementation

Response:

As discussed above, CMS is planning for an extensive and multi-faceted outreach and education program for beneficiaries, suppliers and healthcare providers affected by the competitive bidding program. The outreach program strongly emphasizes a role for CMS' many partners in this effort. Partners include national advocacy organizations such as the American Diabetes Association. CMS welcomes additional partners; they can join the partner community by visiting the "How to Partner with CMS" webpage and clicking on "Submit Feedback" (http://www.cms.hhs.gov/Partnerships/04_HTP.asp#TopOfPage).

Comment: CMS should consult with the diabetes community before finalizing new instruments

Response:

We believe the PRA ICR process provides for this consultation through the review and comment process. As part of this process, we are providing for public comment additional interview guides that we will use shortly after competitive bidding is launched on 1/1/11, as well as revisions to previously developed interview guides. We have augmented the qualitative data collection to include interviews with patient advocacy organizations – including those representing patients with diabetes – during the transition. We have also enhanced focus group guides to include issues concerning the outreach and education effort, and whether patients had sufficient information to support a smooth transition. We refer readers to the guides for the added wave of data collection, Wave 2, in Appendix C, Nonstatistical Instruments, and to revisions to the existing interview guides, revisions that are detailed in the Addendum to these comments and responses.

Comment: Data collection instruments should be clear and easy to follow.

Response:

CMS believes that we have designed our survey forms to meet the criteria that the commenter mentions. These forms were thoroughly tested during the 2007 baseline data collection, before the program was delayed. We welcome any specific suggestions from the public on clarity and flow of the survey instruments. No other forms in this information collection package are for use by the public.

Comment: Ensure representation in the study of populations at high risk of diabetes, including racial/ethnic minorities.

Response:

Resources do not permit surveying users of all nine DMEPOS products, and there will be no survey of users of mail-ordered diabetic supplies. The evaluators will be analyzing claims for diabetic supplies, to study access issues, and these claims will be stratified by race/ethnicity to the extent possible. (It is important to recognize, however, that CMS administrative data have a degree of error in race/ethnicity classification.)

Qualitative data collection will take place before and after the competitively bid contracts begin, and we have added data collection during the transition (early 2011) to identify issues that arise related to changing suppliers or information needs. During this transition data collection phase, the evaluators will contact organizations like the National Alliance for Hispanic Health, and the National Caucus and Center on Black Aged, as well as organizations with a disease specific focus (e.g., American Diabetes Association) to explore the concerns raised by the commenter. We welcome identification of relevant patient advocacy groups.

Comment: Evaluation overlooks impacts on rural beneficiaries.

Response:

This comment is outside the scope of this evaluation because the law prohibits conducting competitive bidding competitions in rural areas before 2015. Section 1847(a)(1)(B) of the Social Security Act (the Act) requires that both the Round 1 rebid and Round 2 occur in specific metropolitan statistical areas. Furthermore, section 1847(a)(1)(D)(iii) of the Act requires the Secretary to exempt rural areas from subsequent competitions occurring before 2015 (except for national mail order).

Comment: Survey forms are too long.

Response:

These forms were thoroughly tested with thousands of respondents during the 2007 baseline data collection, before the program was delayed. In response to several comments, we have been able to reduce the length of the oxygen users survey somewhat, eliminating two questions and consolidating four others. While we agree that the surveys are lengthy, they address several critical access and quality issues that are central to the evaluation.

Comment: Dropping supplier survey will produce skewed data

“CMS states that it plans to drop the supplier survey used in 2007 in favor of focus groups and key informant interviews with suppliers and referral agents. [...] HCC members would argue that the proposed approach will also produce skewed data from the supplier community. [...] [T]he only data that will be collected will be from those who have achieved accreditation, secured a surety bond and been able to maintain their existence in the face of the implementation of competitive bidding.”

Response:

The focus of the previous supplier survey was narrow: to identify makes and models of DMEPOS products offered before and after competitive bidding, to measure changes that may in part be due to the program. We will not be collecting this information in a supplier survey. However, CMS requires bidding suppliers to specify the makes and models of products they intend to provide, and requires winning suppliers to report each quarter on what was actually furnished to beneficiaries. This information will be used by the evaluation team determine whether suppliers continue to provide the makes and models of equipment listed on their bid forms. This alternative mechanism for tracking changes in makes and models will take the place of the supplier survey.

Our original evaluation plan for qualitative data collection with suppliers has not changed, and in fact has been expanded in response to comments received. We will conduct focus groups with suppliers in four of the nine competitive bidding areas rather than just three, interview industry representatives, before and after program implementation, and will check in with them by phone between these two rounds of focus groups as well. The qualitative data are not intended as a substitute for the supplier survey, but rather as an independent data source oriented towards a different set of questions (questions other than product diversity).

Using bidder data and claims, the evaluation will be analyzing changes in the supplier market: which types of suppliers submitted bids, which types won/lost bids, etc. The purpose of this analysis will be to document the number and types of suppliers serving each market before and after competitive bidding, and to understand which types of suppliers were successful in the first round of competitive bidding – and might be expected to be successful in future rounds, when many more communities will be added to the competitive bidding program.

We would like to note that the Government Accountability Office has been tasked by Congress to study the impacts of competitive bidding on suppliers. The Medicare Improvements for Patients and Providers Act (MIPPA) of 2008, Section 154, requires the GAO to submit a report on the following topics:

- (i) Beneficiary access to items and services under the program, including the impact on such access of awarding contracts to bidders that--
 - (I) did not have a physical presence in an area where they received a contract; or*
 - (II) had no previous experience providing the product category they were contracted to provide.
- (ii) Beneficiary satisfaction with the program and cost savings to beneficiaries under the program.*
- (iii) Costs to suppliers of participating in the program and recommendations about ways to reduce those costs without compromising quality standards or savings to the Medicare program.*
- (iv) Impact of the program on small business suppliers.*
- (v) Analysis of the impact on utilization of different items and services paid within the same Healthcare Common Procedure Coding System (HCPCS) code.*
- (vi) Costs to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, including payments made to contractors, for administering the program compared with administration of a fee schedule, in comparison with the relative savings of the program.*
- (vii) Impact on access, Medicare spending, and beneficiary spending of any difference in treatment for diabetic testing supplies depending on how such supplies are furnished.*
- (viii) Such other topics as the Comptroller General determines to be appropriate.'*

This GAO report is in addition to CMS' evaluation report to Congress.

One commenter submitted transcripts from many communications, such as telephone calls, they received from Medicare beneficiaries. These are summarized below:

Ability to use DME supplier of choice: 29 transcribed phone calls from: 28 beneficiaries or caretakers, 1 licensed social worker expressed concerns that beneficiaries will no longer have the ability to choose their DME supplier (loss of consumer choice); that competitive bidding will create monopolies; that small businesses will be harmed; and that beneficiaries will be forced to stop working with the suppliers that they know and trust.

Quality of supplier service: 23 transcribed phone calls from oxygen suppliers, beneficiaries or caretakers expressed concern that competitive bidding will force patients to use a supplier who does not provide them with the same level of quality service that they enjoy with their current supplier, such as equipment set-up and explanation, round the clock on-call assistance, and respectful treatment.

Diabetic supplies: transcribed phone calls from three beneficiaries raised concerns about being forced to use a national instead of a local suppliers, having to pay out of pocket if the new supplier does not work out, and receiving poorer quality service from a new supplier.

Response:

This request for public comment deals specifically with CMS's information collection plans for an evaluation study of the national DME competitive bidding program. Comments about the program itself are outside the scope of the information collection solicitation.

2. COMMENTS RELATED TO QUANTITATIVE DATA COLLECTION

Oxygen Equipment Survey

Comment: Logical flaw in opening statement: "First page, opening statement: The last sentence makes no sense when combined with the boxes one is supposed to check off. Since the first sentence asks the person to check off the appropriate box if they are unable to complete the survey, the last sentence is redundant. We suggest deleting it."

Response:

Survey instrument revised - it now has one check box to indicate that the person to whom the survey was mailed is unable to respond and there is no one available to can serve as a proxy.

Previous opening statement

If the person this survey was mailed to cannot complete the survey and there is no one else who can do so for him or her, please check the appropriate box below and return the blank survey in the enclosed postage-paid envelope. The person this survey was mailed to is:

- ₁ There is nobody available who can complete this survey
- ₉₉ Other reason, please specify: _____

Revised opening statement

- ₁ If the person this survey was mailed to cannot complete the survey, and there is no one else who can do so for him or her, please check here and return the blank survey in the enclosed postage-paid envelope.

Comment: Provide a definition of CPAP in Question A3.

Response:

We have added a simple description of a CPAP machine: A CPAP machine blows air through a hose into a face mask or ventilator, to improve breathing while asleep.

Comment: “A3a. Add a new item 8, ‘I was embarrassed to wear it.’”

Response:

This response category has been added; the response categories are now:

A3a. Why did you stop using oxygen? (Please check all that apply and then go to SECTION G on p. 19.)

- ₁ I believed that my breathing got better so I did not need it anymore
- ₂ My doctor said I did not need it
- ₃ Oxygen therapy costs too much
- ₄ I just did not like using it
- ₅ Equipment was too heavy or cumbersome
- ₆ Equipment kept breaking down
- ₇ I had a problem getting the supplies from my oxygen supplier
- ₈ I was embarrassed to use it
- ₉₆ Other, please specify:

Comment: Delete question A5 on origination site of oxygen therapy

“A5. This is misleading. Most patients start home oxygen within 48 hrs prior to discharge. If they go home on an E cylinder, and receive home oxygen with an E cylinder, they will likely answer ‘yes’ and data will be skewed away from those on the least portable oxygen system. Those that go home on a portable liquid system are in the same predicament. Adding this question is also problematic because if the answer is ‘yes,’ all the other questions relating to the equipment are skipped. It adds little value and we suggest deleting it altogether.”

Response:

We agree with the comment and have eliminated the Skip instruction for those who answer “yes” to this question.

Comments Concerning Questions A7 through A 10:

Comment: Relocate definition of respiratory therapist in Question A7.

“A7. While the description of a respiratory therapist is reasonable, we would recommend 1) either incorporating it into the question in parentheses to be consistent with other definitions, or 2) perhaps consider including a section by itself with definitions or a glossary.”

Comment: Add question about site of respiratory therapist contact.

“A7 – A10. Respiratory therapists (RTs) who work in the home setting should be distinguished from doctors, nurses and hospital-based respiratory therapists. Asking questions about what information was given by professionals outside the home is clinically important. However, since RTs in the home setting have been available in the past, it is of great interest to know if competitive bidding has taken away this clinical support, especially if it is not provided outside the home.

Comment: Improve question A8 about goal of oxygen therapy.

“A8. This question is misleading – the clinical goal of oxygen therapy is to reach a certain oxygen saturation level. For some patients that might mean a flow rate of 2 LPM, while for others it would be a different flow rate. Asking a question about quantity is not as relevant as knowing the end point for adequate oxygenation with rest and exertion.”

I don't know”

Response to Comments on questions A7 through A10:

We agree that the issue for this series of questions is really whether a clinician (rather than a supplier's delivery person) adequately explained equipment options and use to patients. It is also important to know whether instruction happened in the hospital or after the patient returned home and began using the equipment without medical supervision. And we are interested in identifying patients who are not well-educated by medical personnel, as their answers to other survey questions may differ from those who did receive adequate education. The questionnaire has been revised to combine questions A7 through A10 into one question (check all that apply); we believe that this simplification is warranted and has the added benefit of shortening the questionnaire.

Previous questions A7 through A10

A7. A respiratory therapist is a specially trained professional who helps you improve your breathing. Did a doctor or another medical person like a nurse or a respiratory therapist ever explain to you why you needed oxygen?

- ₁ Yes
₂ No
₉₈ I don't know

A8. Did a doctor or another medical person like a nurse or a respiratory therapist ever explain to you how much oxygen you needed?

- ₁ Yes
₂ No
₉₈ I don't know

A9. Did a doctor or another medical person like a nurse or a respiratory therapist ever explain to you when you are supposed to use your oxygen system?

- ₁ Yes

- ₂ No
- ₉₈ I don't know

A10. Did a doctor or another medical person like a nurse or a respiratory therapist ever explain oxygen equipment options and which might be best for you?

- ₁ Yes
 - ₂ No
 - ₉₈ I don't know

Revised questions A7

A7. Did a respiratory therapist or another medical person like a doctor or a nurse ever explain the following to you (Please check all that apply):

- ₁ Oxygen equipment options and which might be best for you
- ₂ Why you need to use oxygen equipment
- ₃ How much oxygen you need
- ₄ When to use your oxygen equipment
- ₉₈ None of these things were explained by a respiratory therapist, doctor, or nurse

Comment: "A13a needs to be revised to better tie it into A13. We suggest revising it to read: "If you have different oxygen equipment, why did you make a change? (Please check all that apply.)" Also, add 'My supplier did not tell me why they changed my equipment.'

Response:

The survey instrument has been revised as suggested in this comment.

Previous questions A13 and A13a

- ₁ Yes (→Skip to A14)
- ₂ No
- ₉₈ I don't know (→Skip to A14)

A13a. Why did you make these changes? (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ Equipment needed to be replaced because it did not work

Comment: Responses to Question A15a do not address the question. Recommend splitting the question into two parts.

Response:

We do not agree that this question should be divided into two parts. Moreover we are asking for individuals' subjective judgments about what is or is not difficult or uncomfortable for them. Equipment one person finds to be heavy or cumbersome may not be a problem for another person. We have modified the response categories in an effort to clarify this purpose.

Comment: Subject of Question A17a is not clear. Does 'less oxygen' mean lower dose, but prescribed duration, shorter duration but prescribed dose, or both? The responses fit more with shorter duration. Shorter duration is proven to reduce survival (NOTT study). Also, response 9 does not make sense in the context of this question and should be deleted."

Response:

We have modified the question in response to this comment, as follows:

Are you using less oxygen than your doctor, nurse or respiratory therapist recommended?

- ₁ Yes, I use it for fewer hours per day than my doctor recommended
- ₂ Yes, I use it for fewer days each week than my doctor recommended
- ₃ Yes, I use a lower flow rate than my doctor recommended
- ₄ No (→Skip to SECTION B)

☐₉₈ I don't know (→ Skip to SECTION B)

Comment: Line drawings for devices are not to scale and therefore are misleading.

Response:

It is not possible to make pictures to scale on an 8 x 10 paper survey questionnaire. We cannot show images of all types of equipment, because they are so diverse – each manufacturer's concentrator looks somewhat different. Moreover, we cannot use photographs of any particular manufacturer's product(s). We believe the current approach of combining 'generic' pictures with text descriptions is the best solution, and these pictures/descriptions were tested successfully in the 2007 data collection. We have, however, added additional descriptors to clarify some of the products, especially to distinguish concentrators (which concentrate room air) from liquid oxygen units (which must be refilled).

Comment: Revise Response 2 of Question B2.

“B2. Response 2 infers that a liquid oxygen vessel resembles a large thermos. A liquid reservoir placed in a patient's home is not generally moved, and one can infer from your description that the device is actually much smaller.”

Response:

The survey instrument has been revised as suggested. Response 2 now reads: “Liquid oxygen vessel (large tank that is usually placed in the home and not moved).”

Comment: Rephrase response category 3 of Question B7a.

“B7a. Response 3 uses ‘apples and oranges’ in its description. We recommend using the phrase ‘liquid oxygen or compressed oxygen’ rather than liquid or cylinder. Many people would describe a liquid system as cylindrical.”

Response:

Response 3 changed to “Unit ran out of liquid oxygen or compressed oxygen.”

Comment: Section B line drawings for devices are not to scale and therefore are misleading.

Response:

It is not possible to show images of every type of equipment, because as this commenter points out, they are so diverse. Moreover, we cannot use photographs of any particular manufacturer's product(s). We believe the current approach of combining 'generic' pictures with text descriptions is the best solution. These pictures/descriptions were tested successfully in the 2007 data collection.

Comment: “C2. Response 1 should say ‘can roll on a cart’ to fit with ‘can carry’ responses – It cannot be carried. Response 4 is inappropriate. ALL examples usually use pulse dose.”

Response:

Response category 6 has been revised.

Revised question

- C2. What type of portable oxygen system(s) do you use? (Please check all that apply.)
- ₁ Mid-sized compressed oxygen tank (E-cylinder, resembles a diving tank and can roll on a cart) [pictured below at left]
 - ₂ Very small and light compressed oxygen tank that concentrates room oxygen (can carry on your shoulder) [pictured below at right]

Comment: Add a response category to Question C5a about oxygen not meeting needs: 'I'm afraid I'll run out of oxygen' as was also used in A15a."

Response:

A response category has been added, as suggested; the revised question is:

- C5a. Please tell us why your portable oxygen system is not meeting your needs. (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ I believe that my breathing got better so I don't need oxygen as much
- ₂ Oxygen therapy costs too much
- ₃ I just don't like using it
- ₄ I am embarrassed to use it
- ₅ Equipment is too heavy or cumbersome
- ₆ Equipment keeps breaking down
- ₇ Equipment is too complicated for me to use
- ₈ I have a problem getting the supplies from my oxygen supplier
- ₉ I'm using a different oxygen system
- ₁₀ I'm afraid I will run out of oxygen
- ₉₆ Other, please specify:

Comment: Clarify response category 6 of question C6 on refills frequency. Suggest revising response 6 to say 'I don't need refills of any type.'

Response:

The survey has been revised as suggested; the revised question is:

C6. In general, how often do you get deliveries/refills from your oxygen supplier for your portable oxygen system? This may include oxygen tank deliveries, liquid oxygen refills, etc.

- ₁ 4 times a month
- ₂ 2-3 times a month
- ₃ Once a month
- ₄ Once every year
- ₅ Less than once per year
- ₆ I don't get refills of any type
- ₉₈ I don't know

Comment: Number of tanks question not interpretable, unless there is also specific information about the size of the tanks being refilled. In addition, while the description of the intermittent flow device is reasonable, neither small liquid units nor portable concentrators are examples of these flow devices; rather they are examples of devices that may use a pulse dosing oxygen regulator. "Suggest modifying the definition to read as follows: '... Examples of these oxygen-conserving devices are pulse-dosing oxygen regulators, or small liquid portable units or portable concentrators that use a pulse dosing oxygen regulator.'"

Response:

Rather than asking respondents how frequently oxygen is delivered to their homes, and how many tanks are delivered, we have reconsidered our approach and will ask instead whether respondents are getting enough oxygen delivered to meet their needs. Question F6a asks about reasons for changing suppliers, and two answer categories now ask whether the respondent changed suppliers because they were unhappy with the amount of oxygen being delivered to their home for their stationary units, or were unhappy with the amount of oxygen being delivered for their portable units. In addition, questions about difficulty or discomfort with using equipment include an answer category about fear of running out of oxygen. These more direct questions will provide more accurate information and will also shorten the survey.

The definition has been modified as suggested by this commenter.

Comment: Correct assumption behind question C7a about who adjusted new device. This question infers that the patient was titrated as part of the initial oxygen set up process. That is not a valid assumption in all cases. “We would recommend changing the wording to ‘When you first received your oxygen equipment that was equipped with an intermittent flow device (not all oxygen users actually use these regulators), who adjusted the device . . . ’”

Response:

The wording of the question has been revised, as suggested by the commenter.

Previous question

C7a. When you first got your intermittent flow device, who adjusted the device and tested you while you were using it? (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ Home oxygen supplier
- ₂ Doctor
- ₃ Other medical personnel
- ₄ No one
- ₅ Don't remember if anyone did
- ₉₈ I don't know

Revised question

C7a. When you first received your oxygen equipment that was equipped with an intermittent flow device, who adjusted the device? (Please check all that apply.)

- ₁ Home oxygen supplier or a respiratory therapist from the supplier
- ₂ Doctor
- ₃ Other medical personnel
- ₄ No one
- ₅ Don't remember if anyone did
- ₉₈ I don't know who it was

Comment: Add a response category to question D3 about expenses for oxygen equipment which may be above $1,000.

Response:

The wording of the question has been revised, as suggested by the commenter. The response categories for question D3 are now:

- ₁ Less than $100
- ₂ $100-$500
- ₃ $500 to $1,000
- ₄ $1,000 to $2,000
- ₉₈ I don't know

Comment: Questions in Section E do not address beneficiaries experience changing suppliers during the transition.

Response:

Differences in survey responses between pre and post competitive bidding will be analyzed to identify changes in access or supplier performance after competitive bidding goes into effect, taking into account environmental changes that affect everyone (as measured in comparison areas). This is the strength of the difference-in-differences evaluation design. The first round of the survey will take place before the competitive bidding program begins and respondents will all have started using their DMEPOS equipment within the previous nine months. The second round of the survey will be given only to beneficiaries who started to receive their DMEPOS items in the year or more after the competitive bidding program began. Therefore surveyed beneficiaries in the post-competitive bidding environment will not include continuing oxygen users who have had to change suppliers as a result of the competitive bidding program. In other words, by administering these questions in a before/after survey design, we intend to learn about ease of negotiating the oxygen marketplace before and after competitive bidding, and then we will compare the two sets of information. A separate part of our research will address the transition to competitive bidding. It will be based on qualitative data collection, as described above and in Appendix C – non-statistical instruments.

Comment: Misuse of word “order” in Question E8 about how quickly equipment arrived; beneficiaries do not order oxygen, physicians do.

Response:

The revised question now reads: “after the order was placed for your oxygen equipment, how long did it take to arrive?”

Comment: Add a “don’t know” response category to Question E10 about specialty of visiting clinician.

Response:

An additional response has been added: “I don’t know or recall the clinical specialty of the person who came to my home.”

Comment: Revise Question E13 about equipment offerings explained by supplier. Suggest revising the question as follows:

E13. Before deciding on the oxygen equipment you use now, did your supplier tell you about all the options available to you, even ones that the supplier did not have in inventory?

- Yes, all options were explained
- No, the supplier only told me what was in his/her inventory
- I don't know"

Response:

The response categories for Question E13 (now renumbered E3a) are revised as follows:

- ₁ Yes, all equipment designs were explained
- ₂ No, the supplier only told me what he/she has in stock
- ₃ No, I already knew the equipment designs available to me
- ₉₈ I don't know

Comment: Revise order of question in Section E.

E1-E2: Okay as is
E13 should become E3
E8 should become E4
E14 should become E5
E9 and 9a should become E6 and 6a
E6 should become E7
E7 should become E8
E10, 11 and 12 should become E9, 10 and 11
E3, 4 and 5 should become E12, 13 and 14"

Response:

The order of questions has been revised as suggested in this comment. The same reordering has been applied to the questionnaires for other types of equipment.

Comment:

Prior to the current Section A of each questionnaire, include a brief new section to ask patients about their experience changing suppliers during the transition.

Response:

We did not change the survey as recommended. The reason is that the first round of the survey will be before the competitive bidding program begins, and the second round of the survey will be given only to beneficiaries who started to receive their DMEPOS items after the program begins; therefore none of the surveyed beneficiaries will have been part of the "transition" cohort that may need to change suppliers.

Comment: "[...] a number of the questions included in the early part of the survey (A7-A12) designed for use with patients on oxygen really do not focus on the responsibilities of the DMEPOS supplier, but rather on the professional medical services provided by the physician who ordered the oxygen equipment for the patient or by the hospital or nursing home personnel that may have been serving the patient at the time oxygen equipment was ordered. While this may be a worthy focus for a CMS evaluation, it really does not relate to the activities of a DMEPOS supplier in a competitive bidding environment.”

Response:

To address this and several other comments, questions A7 – A10 have been combined into one question (as discussed above), which has two purposes. First, we wish to identify patients who do not receive adequate education from medical personnel – their answers to other survey questions may differ from patients who are well-educated. Second, there is some concern that competitive bidding may reduce patient education services, particularly if suppliers who previously paid respiratory therapists to provide this education no longer do so.

3. COMMENTS RELATED TO STUDY FACT SHEETS

Comment: The Fact Sheet does not accurately state the purpose of the study.

Response:

We agree with this comment and have added a introductory statement about the Purpose of the Study. Use of the term “competitive bidding” will likely confuse beneficiaries, because the timing of the first survey administration predates the public information campaign about competitive bidding by several months, and the timing of the second administration occurs well beyond the time of competitive bidding implementation. Thus, we expect many beneficiaries will be perplexed by specific mention of this policy change. However, we agree that it is worthwhile to be more precise about the purpose of the study, which is to provide policymakers a source of information about the home medical equipment benefit in relation to Medicare policy changes. The purpose of the study, as included in the FAQs, will be added to each questionnaire, as follows:

The purpose of the study is to learn more about your satisfaction with the equipment, supplies, and service you receive from your oxygen (or other durable medical equipment) supplier. We also hope to better understand your experiences in obtaining and using this equipment. Results of the survey will be compared with results from patients in different metropolitan areas and results from patients who received their equipment in a different year. These comparisons will help reveal how new ways of administering the Medicare program affect beneficiaries.

4. COMMENTS RELATED TO QUALITATIVE DATA COLLECTION (FOCUS GROUPS AND KEY INFORMANT INTERVIEWS)

Key Informant Discussion Guide: Beneficiary Groups/Advocates (Wave 1)

Comment: “Question 7 ‘Have you heard of the Medicare plan to use Competitive Bidding to modify the DMEPOS fee schedule for reimbursing suppliers?’ should be expanded to include a Question 7c, Have any of the beneficiaries you work with/represent changed their DME supplier(s) as a result of competitive bidding? If so, how has the change affected them?”

Response:

The focus groups will be conducted well before competitively bid contracts begin, and again more than a year after the start. It would be inappropriate to ask these questions before the program begins, but in response to this comment we have added questions on this topic to the moderators' guides for the second round of focus groups.

Comment:

“The term ‘clients’ in Question 7b should be replaced by a neutral term that does not imply a financial relationship.”

Response:

The term “clients” has been replaced by “beneficiaries”.

Comment: “The Center For Regulatory Effectiveness should be named as one of the Beneficiary Groups/Advocates that CMS works with on this study in light of our: 1) long-standing work on competitive bidding, and 2) unique access to/outreach program for Medicare beneficiaries through our Competitive Bidding IPD and toll-free Hotline.”

Response:

We respectfully respond that this comment is premature. The evaluation team, in consultation with the CMS project officer, will select appropriate patient advocacy organizations to interview in the context of the program phase at the time of the interview, in accordance with the evaluation design, in recognition of the potential value of the source given information that has come to the team's attention at the time sources are being recruited, and in consideration of the fact that sources must be prioritized to avoid duplication. As with all studies, resources are limited.

Key Informant Discussion Guide: CMS Officials or CMS' Bidding Program Managers (All Waves)

Comment: “The focus group discussion should be expanded to ask CMS officials: 1) whether they have received complaints from beneficiaries about competitive bidding, and 2) to discuss/characterize those complaints. The Competitive Acquisition Ombudsman should be among the officials interviewed.”

Response:

CMS officials will be interviewed individually rather than participating in any focus groups. They will be asked about their process for tracking complaints/calls/issues, and the types of issues that arose during the transition period.

The DME Ombudsman will be among the officials interviewed by the evaluation team. The competitive bidding ombudsman will also prepare a separate report covering, among other things, the competitive bidding program implementation.
