ABSTRACT:

Sub-study #7 - The purpose of this study is to assess how individuals make medical decisions with their doctors, nurses, and other healthcare providers. Medical decision-making will be studied in the context of older males' decision of whether or not to have the Prostate-Specific Antigen (PSA) test. This project is being overseen by the Division of Cancer Control and Population Sciences (DCCPS) and is aligned with the Office of Communications and Educations (OCE) generic clearance purposes of formative research to, "inform the design and development of NCI resources and ensure that they are appropriate and effective, and reach the intended audiences... [and to] assess the impact of resources and activities."

Sub-study #8 - The Protocol and Information Office (PIO) within the Cancer Therapy Evaluation Program (CTEP)'s Operations and Informatics Branch serves to improve the protocol development and conduct processes through the use of efficient business practices and informatics tools within the Division of Cancer Treatment and Diagnosis (DCTD). The PIO External Customer Satisfaction Survey is one means the PIO serves this purpose.
