

FDA actively participates with PFSE and values its educational programs, which are essential and consistent with the federal mandate for consumer education contained in section 903(d)(2)(D) (21 U.S.C. 393(d)(2)(D) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (the act), which states that the Secretary, through the Commissioner, shall be responsible for executing the act and for conducting educational and public information programs relating to the responsibilities of FDA.

B. Research Objectives

PFSE supports a large, complex, and multi-faceted consumer food safety education program with messaging and programs supported and aligned with FDA, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. PFSE remains experienced and poised for continuing services. PFSE is well recognized throughout the country and the world for its science-based, behavior-changing consumer education campaigns.

This cooperative agreement will enable PFSE to continue and enhance the valued utility and impact of its program through the development of a new, updated, national food safety education strategic plan that addresses changes that have occurred through the past decade. These changes are particularly necessary to include emerging food safety concerns. In addition, the cooperative agreement will assist PFSE to build the capacity of the organization.

The funds will support a facilitated strategic planning process to determine future directions for PFSE in carrying out a nationwide food safety education program on safe handling practices to prevent foodborne illness. The process will include PFSE members as well as other stakeholders such as consumer groups, public health organizations, and food safety experts from academia who are not currently members. The process will include re-examining research-based messages, determining PFSE's role over the next 5 years, and determining strategies to enlarge PFSE membership to a greater variety of stakeholders.

Research objectives include the following: A re-examination of food safety messages to ensure inclusion of the latest science, the identification of new educational programs and marketing strategies based on social science theory and behavioral research, and an assessment of the most effective organizational structure for PFSE and opportunities for enlarging membership to enhance program delivery.

FDA will pay for qualitative or quantitative research with stakeholders and meetings with stakeholder groups and consumer experts.

FDA will support the research covered by the notice under the authority of section 301 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 241). FDA's research program is described in the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance number 93.103.

C. Eligibility Information

Eligibility is limited to PFSE located in Washington, DC. FDA believes that continued support of PFSE is essential to carry out its Federal mandate for consumer education contained in the act. PFSE is the only organization qualified to fulfill the objectives of the proposed cooperative agreement.

A. Award Amount

The estimated amount of funds available for support in FY 2010 will be for up to $340,000 (direct costs plus indirect costs).
