CONSENT FORM FOR INTERVIEWEES

Title of Research Project:

Assessing the Long-term impacts of research training programs supported by the John E. Fogarty International Center

Principal Investigator: Dr. Sara Bennett

Introduction

This consent form explains the research study you are being asked to join. Please review this form carefully and ask any questions about the study before you agree to join. You may also ask questions at any time after joining the study.

Purpose of Research Project:

This research is being implemented by the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health with the support of the John E. Fogarty International Center (FIC).

The Fogarty International Center (FIC) at the National Institutes for Health (NIH) is dedicated to supporting and facilitating global health research conducted by U.S. and international investigators, building partnerships between health research organizations¹ in the U.S. and abroad, and training the next generation of scientists to address global health needs. Fogarty programs invest in scientific human capital in LMIC settings and foster long-lasting collaborative research relationships between LMIC scientists and scientists in the US. These investments are intended to enhance opportunities for resolving major global health problems through the conduct of locally relevant research.

FIC has made substantial investment in Makerere University/University of Nairobi over the years, and is interested in developing a more comprehensive understanding of the long term impacts of FIC research training programs including not only the outcomes in terms of the professional development and career paths of individual trainees, but the broader effects upon organizational capacity, knowledge production, and policy development among other things.

You are being asked to participate in this study because either you have been closely involved in a FIC research training program yourself, or because you work with people who do so.

Procedures:

If you agree to participate in this study, the following will occur:

You will be asked to agree to be interviewed once. During this interview, you will meet with a member of our research team. You will be asked a series of questions the long term effects of FIC support to research training. Interviews will be conducted in a private setting and will take approximately 60 minutes. The interview will be tape-recorded. We will ask you to indicate how we can reach you for the interviews, and we will follow the procedures you request for contacting you.

It is your decision whether or not to be in this study. You can stop the interview at any time and refuse to answer any question. If you wish you can request to review the tapes or transcripts from the interview and you can ask for any of the remarks that you have made to be deleted from the tapes.

Risks/Discomforts:

Your name will not be used in any reports or publications of research. Your interview records will be handled as confidentially as possible. Tapes will be stored in a locked cabinet and all tapes will be destroyed at the end of the analysis phase of the study. If a question make you feel uncomfortable, you may refuse to answer a particular question and you may stop the interviews at any time.

Benefits:

There will be no direct benefit to you for completing the interview. Any benefit is in the long-term in that data collected from this study may be used to recommend changes in the nature of investment FIC makes in its training programs.

Privacy

In accordance with applicable laws, the information we collect from you will be kept private and secure. This means that, to the extent possible by law, the only persons who will have access to the information you provide will be people who work for the study. We will not put your name or other identifying information on records of the information you provide.

Compensation:

There is no compensation provided for participating.

Voluntariness:

Your participation in this research project is completely voluntary. You have the right to withdraw from the research study at any time. If you have any questions, comments, or concerns about participation in this study, you should first talk to the researchers who interviewed you. You may also ask the principal investigator listed below any questions you may have about this research study. You may ask him/her questions in the future if you do not understand something that is being done. The investigators will share with you any new findings that may develop while you are participating in this study.

Persons to Contact:

If you want to talk to anyone about this research study because you think you have not been treated fairly or think you have been hurt by joining the study, or you have any other questions about the study, you should call the principal investigator, Dr. Sara Bennett at +1 202 553 1417 or or the local contact person [TBD]. You may also contact the Institutional Review Board at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health phone number (tel +1 410 955 3193) and the FAX number which is +1 410 502 0584.
