

The cpsc.gov redesign project will conduct two remote focus groups for usability testing, one for consumers and one for business. Each group will have 8-10 participants. The testing will occur in one-on-one sessions lasting about one hour per participant. The testing script has not been developed yet, but will focus on asking the participant about their impressions of the new wireframes/complete specific tasks against the wireframes. We will be offering an incentive to the participants of about $100. For more information on the actual test script, contact Philip Margolies at the Consumer Product Safety Commission, 301-504-6987.
