Subsequent to the approval of the Common Core of Data-Teachers Compensation Survey (TCS; OMB# 1850-0874-v.1), NCES has become aware that a few states publicly release teacher level data on the same variables that comprise the TCS. Since the publicly released teacher level data do not require the confidentiality protections of the Education Sciences Reform Act (ESRA), we are submitting a modification to the approved OMB package. The TCS restricted use file (RUD) file will be composed of the same data variables for all included states, regardless of whether each state has or has not made their teacher data available to the public. However, if the confidentiality provisions of ESRA are not applied, the data in the RUD will be identical to the data made publicly available by the states. In contrast, teacher data that are not publicly released by the states will be subject to appropriate disclosure avoidance techniques, such as data perturbation, in order to protect the teachers' identity from disclosure to the fullest extent possible. The TCS public use summary files will be composed of the same data variables irrespective of whether a state has or has not made their teacher data available to the public. The public use files containing summary school-level and district-level data based on teacher data made available to the public by the state will not suppress small cells. For states which do not make teacher data available to the public, TCS public use files will be subject to whole case suppression, and/or multiple case suppression for small cells.
