Introduction and Purpose:

You have been asked to take part in a research study. The purpose of the research is to conduct one on one interviews to get feedback on several materials that are being developed for emergency medicine physicians about CDC's new recommendations on HIV testing. RTI International, a non-profit company in North Carolina is conducting the interview. The interview is sponsored by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

Procedures:

During the interview, we will ask you to review materials that have been developed and provide feedback. The interview will take about an hour.

We will be doing interviews with physicians in 8 cities. About 72 people will take part in the interviews.

The person doing the interview will take notes. CDC staff working on this project may observe the interview through a one-way mirror.

Benefits:

There is no direct benefit to you for being in this interview. However, you will be exposed to educational materials that are designed to serve as resources to share with patients and for the provider to use in their day to day practice. You may find the discussion interesting and informative. What we learn from the interview will help us to improve the materials being developed.

Risks:

The questions we ask are not meant to be sensitive. Still, there is a chance that you may feel discomfort about some of the questions we ask. You may choose not to answer any question you wish. We do not know of any other risks related to taking part in this study.

Privacy:

We will be audio-taping the interview. Tapes will be kept in a locked cabinet. Notes will be made of the audiotapes. We will only refer to your first name in the notes. Because we are not transcribing the audiotapes, we will keep the tapes for reference if needed to confirm the notes. All audiotapes will be destroyed three years after completion of the project. Your comments will be kept private to the extent allowable by law. The notes will be kept on a password-protected computer. Only authorized project staff will be able to see them. Any forms related to the project that have your name or information that could identify you will be kept in a locked file cabinet. These forms will be destroyed after the interview ends. However, there is still a small risk that your privacy could be broken.

Also, any information that this local facility already has about you -- because you have been in other projects -- will still be kept there. You may be contacted by them to be in other projects in the future. If you have not been contacted by this facility before this project, they will not keep any of your contact information.
