

PATIENT PERSPECTIVE

There are many ways of treating any single medical problem, from medication, to therapy to surgery. Each has its advantages and disadvantages, and physicians offer clinical opinions about which works best. Today, patients and caregivers want doctors to also factor in how the patients themselves feel about those treatment options, based on personal tolerances, lifestyle and preferences. Patients are more informed than ever, and they should have a voice in determining their treatment options. When doctors listen to their patients' perspective, they can match treatment options with patient preferences.

YOUR DOCTOR KNOWS MEDICINE, BUT YOU KNOW YOU.

There is no substitute for having a smart, attentive physician. But a vital factor in your medical care is how you feel about the treatments they prescribe. Fortunately, you now have access to pure, scientifically-sound, easy-to-understand treatment information. You can weigh all of the pros and cons of different treatment options from home. And talk to your doctor about any concerns or questions. All of which makes them better at helping you.

NO AGENDA

While there's no shortage of information out there about treatment options, it's easy for patients and caregivers to be overwhelmed by the sheer volume of it all. One can't help but wonder who to trust – what's real and what's just someone trying to sell something? When one's health is at stake, one has every right to expect unbiased information from a trusted source. A source that's comprehensive, reassuringly scientific, and untainted by an agenda of self-interest. Because the only agenda that matters is living healthier longer.

LET'S TAKE A COLD HARD LOOK AT YOUR TREATMENT OPTIONS.

Independent scientists, doctors and researchers have created an information resource to help you compare the pros and cons of different treatment options. They lay out the facts. But make no recommendations. So you and your doctor can make an object decision about what will work best for you. So if you're looking for pure, scientifically-sound treatment information, here it is. In our unbiased opinion.
