Script for Verbal Informed Consent for Remote Usability Testing of the Office of Cancer Survivorship Website

As part of this research, I need to ask you to formally agree to this usability test and interview.

As part of a research project for the National Cancer Institute's Office of Cancer Survivorship website, we are seeking to assess the appropriateness and usability of the current design. We are asking a total of about 16 individuals such as yourself to participate in a test of the OCS website. We are asking you for about 60 minutes of your time today plus the time you've already spent responding to phone calls and/or emails.

We won't be asking anything personal and identifying information is only collected so we can send you a token of our appreciation for your time. Identifying information will not be shared. Any findings will be reported in aggregated form.

Your participation is voluntary, and if you choose not to participate it will not affect your relationship with the National Cancer Institute. You may ask questions at any time during the testing. You are also free to stop the testing at any time without penalty and without any questions being asked of you. Do you have any questions about the process of the usability test?

If you agree to participate, you are saying that you understand what I've told you and that any questions you have were satisfactorily answered. You are also saying that you are at least 18 years old, and that you voluntarily agree to participate. Do you agree to participate in this usability test?
