Subject: Views of individuals interested in proteomics for NCI survey

Hi,

You are receiving this message because you were selected to participate in a survey for the National Cancer Institute (NCI). As someone who receives the NCI Proteomics News by email, you have been identified as an individual whose views are critical to understanding an NCI-funded program: the Clinical Proteomic Tumor Analysis Consortium (CPTAC).

NCI has retained Westat, an independent research organization, to conduct a survey of users or potential users of CPTAC resources. Participation in this survey is voluntary, but your views are important and we hope you will complete it even if you know little about CPTAC. All data will be reported to NCI in aggregate form. No reports will contain findings linked to individual respondents or institutions.

Regardless of your level of familiarity with CPTAC, please click on the link below to take the short online survey about the program. We estimate that it will take less than 10 minutes.

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

If you have questions about this survey, please contact Dr. Eden Segal at edensegal@westat.com or 240-314-7583. If you have questions about your rights and welfare as a research participant, please call the Westat Human Subjects Protections office at 1-888-920-7631. Please leave a message with your full name, the name of this study—CPTAC Survey for NIH—and a phone number beginning with the area code. Someone will return your call as soon as possible. If you have questions about the CPTAC program itself, contact Dr. Tara Hiltke at hiltket@mail.nih.gov or 301-451-8511.

If you do not wish to receive further emails regarding this and other surveys using the Survey Monkey platform, click the link below to be automatically removed from the mailing list.
