

Patient Centered Communication Model Phase II

Introduction

You are being invited to take part in a research study. The information in this form is provided to help you decide whether or not to take part. Study personnel will be available to answer your questions and provide additional information. If you decide to take part in the study, you will be asked to sign this consent form. A copy of this form will be given to you.

What is the purpose of this research study?

Often, cancer cases are detected in advanced stages, resulting in increased levels of psychological distress and anxiety. When information is provided to cancer patients, the following benefits may occur: increased patient involvement in decision-making; greater satisfaction with treatment choices; improved ability to cope during the diagnosis, treatment and post-treatment phases; reductions in anxiety and mood disturbances; and improved communication with family members. Considering the short time period between diagnosis and treatment initiation, it is critical that patients are provided the tools to navigate a healthcare system, choose treatment options, and deal with emotional distress. Given the importance of patient-centered communication (PCC), our goal is to develop a computer system that will provide support and guidance to female cancer patients diagnosed with breast cancer or gynecological cancers, with the aim of easing levels of anxiety and psychological unrest.

The objectives for this study are to develop a PCC model specifically designed female patients diagnosed with breast cancer or gynecological cancers via:

- Groups interviews with patients, caregivers, support group leaders, and promotoras
- Structured interviews with providers
- Evaluation of prototype in terms of usability and usefulness from patients, caregivers, support group leaders and promotoras

Why are you being asked to participate?

You are invited to participate because you have been recognized as a provider who has given care to women with breast cancer or gynecological cancer. You have been identified as a member of the oncology care team. You are also being asked to participate because you are over the age of 21 years.

How many people will be asked to participate in this study?

Approximately 9 providers will be asked to participate in this study.

What will happen during this study?

You will be asked to participate in a structured interview about recommendations on information that should be provided to newly diagnose female patients. The interview should last no more than 30 minutes. It can be conducted by phone or in person. You will be asked to discuss information which you would consider useful for female cancer patients, including decision-making strategies, support methods, and available services or resources. You will be asked to discuss possible barriers with the introduction of the computer system in a clinical practice. You will also be given mock screens to evaluate the interface designs of a computer model. If you do the interview by phone, a link to the mock screens will be sent to your email.

How long will I be in this study?

Your participation in this interview will last approximately 60 minutes.

Are there any risks to me?

There are no known risks from your participation and no direct benefit from your participation is expected. You may withdraw from the study at any time without any prejudice. There is no cost to you except your time.

Are there any benefits to me?

You may not receive any benefit from your participation and we cannot guarantee direct benefit to you from your participation. You may withdraw from the study at any time without prejudice.

Will there be any costs to me?

Aside from your time, there are no costs for taking part in the study.

Will I be paid to participate in the study?

You will be compensated $30 as a means to offset the financial burden associated with time spent, travel, and miscellaneous expenses related to attending the interview.

Will video or audio recordings be made of me during the study?

An audio recording will be conducted during the interview. To be certain that your responses are recorded accurately please check the box below:

I give my permission for audio recordings to be made of me during my participation in this research study.

I do not give my permission for audio recordings to be made of me during my participation in this research study.

Will the information that is obtained from me be kept confidential?

The only persons who will know that you participated in this study will be the research Principal Investigator and research personnel.

Your records will be kept private under the Privacy Act. You will not be identified in any reports or publications resulting from the study. Representatives of regulatory agencies including Sterling IRB may access your records.

What if I am harmed by the study procedures?

This project involves minimal risks to study participants, so no precautions are necessary.

May I change my mind about participating?

Your participation in this study is voluntary. You may decide to not begin or to stop the study at any time. Your refusing to participate will have no effect on your medical status or your relationship with your health care professionals. You can discontinue your participation with no effect on your employment status or professional relationship with the research team. Any new information discovered about the research will be provided to you.

Whom can I contact for additional information?

You can call the Principal Investigator to tell him/her about a concern or complaint about this research study. The Principal Investigator, DerShung Yang, Ph.D., can be called at (847) 419-9288 or the Project Manager, Niina Haas, M.A., at (480) 329-1889. If you have questions about your rights as a research subject you may call Sterling IRB at (888) 636-1062.
