Section 10 How to Return Your Application

Before you return your application, check to make sure that:

- Every question that applies to you has been answered.
- You have entered "unknown" in any answer space for which you were unable to answer a question.
- You have signed and dated the application.
- You have included all the needed proofs listed in the letter you received with this application.

When you received your application, you should also have received a pre-addressed return envelope. If you do not have this envelope, you can use any envelope as long as it is addressed to the RRB shown on the last page of this application. No matter which envelope you use, you must put the correct postage on the envelope. Be careful to provide enough postage, because your application and the accompanying forms may weigh more than a standard letter. The U.S. Postal Service will not deliver your application unless it has the correct postage.

Make one final check before you seal the envelope to ensure that the following are enclosed:

- Needed proofs
- The application itself
- Additional forms you were asked to complete

Note: A receipt for your application will be sent to you after the RRB receives your completed and signed application. When you receive the receipt, you will know that the RRB has received your application and has started the work needed to determine if you are entitled to benefits. If you do not receive your receipt within a month after you filed this application, please contact us so we can find out what is causing the delay.

Section 11 Additional Instructions

This section contains more detailed instructions or explanations for a few of the items on the application form. Whenever the instructions on the Form AA-21 refer you to Section 11 you should read this section for the particular question or section before you complete that part of the application. This section can be detached from the Form AA-21 packet before the application is returned to the Railroad Retirement Board (RRB).

Item 43

The RRB may be able to pay an annuity to a child of a deceased railroad employee if the child meets certain requirements. When we use the word "child" we are including all of the following categories of children:

- Natural child.
- Stepchild.
- Legally adopted child.
- Equitably adopted child (that is, the employee intended to adopt the child but a legal adoption was not complete before the employee died).
- Deemed child (that is, a child who is born during an invalid marriage).
- Grandchild.
- Stepgrandchild.

In order to be considered for an annuity, the child must be unmarried. In addition, the child must be:

- under age 18; or
- age 18 or older and became disabled before age 22 and the disability is not expected to ever go away; or
- age 18–19 and is attending high school full time.

If the child is the employee's stepchild, the employee must have been providing at least one-half support. If the child is the employee's grandchild or stepgrandchild, the employee must have been providing at least one-half of the child's support and either the child's own parents were dead or disabled or the child was legally adopted by the employee's widow or widower.

Even if there are no children who meet all these requirements right now, a child's annuity may be able to be paid if any child met all the requirements in the month the employee died or later or, if the employee died more than six months ago, if any child met these requirements anytime in the last six months.

If there is any child who meets these requirements, put an "X" in the "YES" box. In addition, you, some other adult acting for the child, or the child should contact the RRB as soon as possible and request information about children's annuities.

Section 6 (Items 57–84)

Section 6: Information About Burial Expenses requires various information about the types of burial expenses which have resulted from the employee's death and about the people who paid these expenses and the money which was used to pay the expenses. Please refer to the following definitions when completing Items 57–84.

• Burial Expenses

Burial expenses include any expenses which arose in connection with the burial or cremation of the employee's body. These include the burial plot, casket, clothing, cremation, death certificates, embalming, flowers, hearse and car for funeral procession, minister, monument, newspaper notice, niche, opening and closing of grave, permits, perpetual care of grave, preparation of body for burial, religious services, telegrams, telephone calls, transportation of the body, traveling expenses of the person escorting the corpse or completing burial arrangements, and so on.

•• Funeral Expenses

Funeral expenses include any of the above burial expenses if the expense is incurred by or through the funeral home. In other words, any burial expense which is included in the funeral home's charges is considered a funeral expense.

•• Burial Plot Cost

The cost of the burial plot is the value of the plot at the time the employee is buried, even if the plot was purchased before the employee's death. If the plot in which the employee is buried is part of a multiplot plot, only the portion of the value of the plot which corresponds to the portion of the plot in which the employee is buried is considered the burial plot cost.

- • Other Burial Expenses

Any burial expense which is not included in the funeral home's charges, is not the cost of opening or closing of the grave and is not the burial plot cost can be included in the total other burial expenses.

- Your Own Money

You should consider that you paid expenses with your own money if the money used to pay the expenses was your own personal funds, money in a bank account if it was a joint account owned by you and the employee, money from an insurance policy if you were the beneficiary of the policy, or death benefits from a fraternal association, union or employer if you were named beneficiary of the benefits. If you are applying as the representative of an institution, organization, or association you should treat the money paid by the institution, organization, or association that you are representing as your own money.

- The Employee's Money

No matter who makes the actual payment, consider that burial expenses were paid with the employee's money if the money used to make the payment was:

- cash which the employee had at death,
- money which was in a bank account which was owned only by the employee;
- money obtained by selling any of the employee's property;
- unpaid wages which an employer was holding;
- money from a trust fund or money from an insurance policy which the employee owned, if there was no beneficiary or if all the beneficiaries died before the employee;
- any payment made to a funeral home by the employee prior to the employee's death as part of a pre-need burial plan.

- Other Person's Money

Any portion of the burial expenses which has been paid using funds other than those considered to be your own money or the employee's money should be shown as expenses paid with any other person's money. The term "person" can be applied to an individual, partnership, organization, fraternal association or government unit.

- Reimbursement

The lump-sum death payment may be paid as a reimbursement to the person(s) who paid the employee's burial expenses. An individual who receives the lump-sum death payment on this basis agrees not to request or accept reimbursement from another party for that part of the burial expenses reimbursed by the lump-sum death payment.

You must submit proof of payment of the burial expenses. Part V of the booklet RB-21, Lump-Sum Death Payment, Residual Lump-Sum, and Annuities Unpaid at Death, explains what proof is acceptable. If there are certain expenses such as flowers, telegrams, phone calls or payments for religious ceremony for which you did not receive a receipt, use Section 8 to list the expenses and the amount of each expense.

Note: If you are applying on behalf of a medical school, dental school, or anatomical board, use Section 8 to show the date of final disposition of the employee's body (that is, the date when the body was buried or when the ashes from the cremation are scattered or otherwise put to rest). If there has been no final disposition of the body, indicate that in Section 8.
