Step 2. General Requirements

Evidence of qualification as a dependent applicant

The evidence needed to qualify as a dependent applicant depends on which type of dependent applicant you are claiming.

- 1. Spouse or child of a principal applicant. If you are the spouse or unmarried, minor (under 21 years of age) child of a principal applicant, you must submit evidence of your relationship to the principal applicant. You do not need to submit any documentation establishing either presence in the United States on December 31, 1995, or continuity of presence since that date. You must, however, be present in the United States at time of filing.
- 2. Unmarried son or daughter of an principal applicant. If you are the unmarried son or daughter (over 21 years of age) of a principal applicant, you must submit evidence of your relationship to the principal applicant. You must also submit evidence of your continuity of presence in the United States since December 31, 1995, along with a statement regarding all departures and arrivals from the United States. You do not need to submit evidence of your presence in the United States on December 31, 1995. You must, however, be present in the United States at time of filing.

How does an unmarried son or daughter establish continuity of physical presence since December 31, 1995?

In determining whether you have maintained continuous physical presence in the United States since December 31, 1995, the law allows absences from the United States totaling 180 days or less. You are required to submit a statement on a separate piece of paper listing the dates of departure and return of all absences from the United States since your last arrival on or prior to December 31, 1995. If you have not been absent from the United States, write "I have not been outside the U.S. since my arrival on the date indicated in Part 1 of Form I-485."

You must also support your statement regarding continuity of physical presence since December 31, 1995, by submitting documentation from one or more governmental or non-governmental authorities. This evidentiary requirement is in addition to the list of departures and returns discussed above. The document(s) must bear your name (or the name of a family member with whom you can establish that you were co-habiting), the date of issuance, and (if the document normally contains it) the signature, seal, or other authenticating instrument of the issuing authority.

While you do not need to submit documents covering each and every day or month since December 31, 1995, there should be no large, unexplained gaps in the documentation. Examples of such documents might include but are not limited to rent receipts, school records, utility bills, other dated receipts, personal checks, employment records, and credit card statements.

Other evidence

If you are 14 years of age or older, you must submit a police clearance from each municipality where you resided for six months or longer since arriving in the United States. If your local police authority refuses to provide such clearance, you may submit written evidence to that effect and request that this requirement be waived. You are not required to submit either an employment letter or an affidavit of support.

What if the documentation is already contained in my immigration file?

If you have received correspondence or had other interaction with USCIS, and know that your immigration file contains copies of such correspondence or record of such interaction, you may simply submit a statement listing the type and dates of such evidence that is already contained in your immigration file.
