TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION:

Fatigue Management Training Module for Emergency Responders Evaluation

PURPOSE:

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) seeks to obtain Office of Management and Budget (OMB) approval to collect feedback on customer service delivery and satisfaction with a NIOSH fatigue management training module.

During disasters, emergency responders often suffer from fatigue. During Hurricane Katrina, one in three U.S. Coast Guard personnel who deployed reported getting 5 hours or less of sleep each night. Researchers noted that this gave them three times the risk for depression; slips, trips, and falls; muscle strain; and dehydration.

In response to the 2014 Ebola outbreak in West Africa, NIOSH developed an on-line 30 minute fatigue management training module for emergency responders. The customer service delivery objectives for the training include the following: (1) increase awareness of fatigue and the importance of adequate sleep for health and well-being; (2) improve knowledge of fatigue risk management by introducing relevant and useful fatigue management techniques, and (3) motivate responders to consider how they might better prevent fatigue in the future.

To ensure that this NIOSH fatigue management training product will satisfy our customers’ needs (and previously stated objectives), NIOSH proposes to collect feedback from emergency responders who take the training through a brief web-based survey immediately following the delivery of the NIOSH fatigue management training module. Results will help NIOSH to identify and incorporate any needed improvements; thus, ensuring that the delivery of future versions of our training product meets our stakeholders’ needs and expectations.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

Respondents will be emergency responders deploying to West Africa for the Ebola response (or potentially to any future disaster). These responders will be at various stages of their careers and lives, both male and female.
