TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION:

Vital Signs Survey

PURPOSE:

Vital Signs is an important program at CDC. It is a call to action each month concerning a single, important public health topic. The program consists of several parts, including (1) an MMWR Early Release the first Tuesday of every month; (2) A professionally designed Fact Sheet for consumer audiences, a dedicated website that mirrors the Fact Sheet on the topic; (3) a media release; and (4) a series of announcements via social media tools (Twitter, Facebook, etc.) CDC believes that by focusing on a single topic using multiple media devices, the states might better identify these health problems in their area and work towards their improvement.

The Vital Signs monthly survey is administered via a feedback button/tab on the main Vital Signs webpage. The survey is administered to improve Vital Signs for the general public and to make sure we are providing the right information to the right audience. It is a way to assess customer satisfaction with the communication tool. From the survey we find out the following: how the individual is using the Vital Signs material, how well it provides information for the consumer to take action on the health topic, how well the health issue is explained, and how they found out about Vital Signs.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

This is a voluntary survey. The participants generally fall into the following groups: individual interested in health issues, patient/friend or family member interested in health issues, state/county/local public health professional, physician, nurse/physician’s assistant/nurse practitioner, CDC employee/contractor, scientist/researcher, policymaker/legislator/or staff, other (generally students, college professors, etc.).
