

Part IV. Items of General Interest

Proposed Tip Reporting Alternative Commitment (TRAC) Agreement for Use Where Tipped Employees Receive Both Cash and Charged Tips (Other Than in the Food and Beverage Industry and the Cosmetology and Barber Industry)

Announcement 2000-19

The Internal Revenue Service is expanding its Tip Rate Determination/Education Program (TRD/EP), which is designed to enhance tax compliance among tipped employees through taxpayer education and voluntary advance agreements instead of traditional audit techniques. This announcement solicits comments on a draft agreement for use in industries other than the food and beverage industry and the cosmetology and barber industry. The agreement is entitled Tip Reporting Alternative Commitment (For use only where tipped employees receive both cash and charged tips, other than in the food and beverage industry and the cosmetology and barber industry).

OVERVIEW

The Service developed its TRD/EP in 1993 as a means of enhancing tax compliance while reducing taxpayer burden. In essence, the TRD/EP envisioned that the Service and taxpayers in industries in which tipping is common would work together to improve tax compliance. The TRD/EP currently offers employers the opportunity of entering into one of two types of agreements. The Tip Rate Determination Agreement (TRDA) requires the determination of tip rates; the Tip Reporting Alternative Commitment (TRAC) agreement emphasizes education and tip reporting procedures. The agreements also set forth an understanding that employers that comply with the terms of the agreement will not be subject to challenge by the Service. The TRDAs set forth similar understandings with respect to employees who participate in the agreements. Although not set forth in the TRAC agreements, employees who properly report tips also will not be subject to challenge by the Service. The decision to enter into either a TRDA or a TRAC agreement is entirely voluntary on the part of the employer.

In 1995, the Service developed the TRAC agreement for use in the food and beverage industry. In 1997, the Service developed a TRAC agreement for employers in the hairstyling industry. The agreements have been both popular and effective. Other industries have expressed interest in TRAC agreements tailored to their industries. Because the number of employees who receive both cash and charged tips in industries other than the food and beverage industry and the cosmetology and barber industry is relatively small, the Service has designed a general TRAC agreement for use in other industries.

To ensure consistency in the agreements offered to taxpayers and to provide an opportunity for public comment before making agreements available for use, a TRAC agreement for use in other industries is attached to this announcement. The Service requests comments from industries that might use the agreement.

The Service plans to allow electronic systems (including point-of-sale systems) to satisfy the TRAC education requirement. The Service requests comments on what information the system must provide to employees to satisfy the education requirement.

Proposed Tip Rate Determination Agreement (TRDA) for Use by Any Employer With Tipped Employees (Other Than in the Food and Beverage Industry and the Gaming Industry)

Announcement 2000-20

The Internal Revenue Service is expanding its Tip Rate Determination/Education Program (TRD/EP), which is designed to enhance tax compliance among tipped employees through taxpayer education and voluntary advance agreements instead of traditional audit techniques. This announcement solicits comments on a draft agreement for use in industries other than the food and beverage industry and the gaming industry. This agreement is entitled Tip Rate Determination Agreement (For use by any employer with tipped employees, other than in the food and beverage industry and the gaming industry).

OVERVIEW

The Service developed its TRD/EP in 1993 as a means of enhancing tax compliance while reducing taxpayer burden. In essence, the TRD/EP envisions that the Service and taxpayers in industries in which tipping is common would work together to improve tax compliance. The TRD/EP currently offers employers the opportunity of entering into one of two types of agreements. The Tip Rate Determination Agreement (TRDA) requires the determination of tip rates; the Tip Reporting Alternative Commitment (TRAC) agreement emphasizes education and tip reporting procedures. The agreements also set forth an understanding that employers that comply with the terms of the agreement will not be subject to challenge by the Service. The TRDAs set forth similar understandings with respect to employees who participate in the agreements. Although not set forth in the TRAC agreements, employees who properly report tips also will not be subject to challenge by the Service. The decision to enter into either a TRDA or a TRAC agreement is entirely voluntary on the part of the employer.

In 1993, the Service developed the TRDA for use in the food and beverage industry. In 1997, the Service developed a TRDA for use in the gaming industry. Other industries have expressed interest in TRDAs tailored to their industries. Because the number of tipped employees in these other industries is diverse, the Service has designed a TRDA for use in industries other than the food and beverage industry and the gaming industry.

To ensure consistency in the agreements offered to taxpayers and to provide an opportunity for public comment before making agreements available for use, a TRDA for use in industries other than the food and beverage industry and the gaming industry is attached to this announcement. The Service requests comments from industries that might use the agreement.
