INTRO: During this interview, we are going to talk about three general ways that women Veterans can receive healthcare. The first is directly at a VA site of care, such as a VA medical center, a VA hospital, or a VA outpatient clinic. The second way is when VA pays for care received by a woman Veteran outside of a VA site-of-care; this is sometimes called contract care or fee-basis care. And the third way is when a woman just receives care completely outside the VA system, from regular civilian providers who are not associated with the VA. This next section includes questions about these different categories of care.

B9. In the past 24 months, have you received any care in a VA site of care?
