3. Information Requested

This RFI invites the scientific community, health professionals, and the general public to provide comments and suggestions on the proposed framework of using the characteristics of a healthy, functional 21-year-old person, plus the other principles and factors noted, above for developing Study content and protocols. Given the requirements as stated in the Children's Health Act of 2000, please include in responses to the questions below whether the Study proposed content framework balances the complex requirements.

1. Please comment on the validity and acceptability of using a composite outcome—the higher-level functions of a healthy 21-year-old person—as an operational construct to help frame data collection.

2. Are there additional outcomes or developmental endpoints that should be considered?

3. What factors should the NCS use to prioritize assessments? Some examples of factors to consider are:

- a. Potential public health impact.
- b. Technical feasibility, including timing of data collection with regard to potential developmental vulnerability.
- c. Scientific opportunity to address knowledge gaps and illuminate developmental pathways.

This RFI is for planning purposes only and should not be construed as a solicitation for applications or proposals, or as an obligation in any way on the part of the United States Federal government. The Federal government will not pay for the preparation of any information submitted or for the government's use. Additionally, the government cannot guarantee the confidentiality of the information provided.
