

City Trees and Your Neighborhood

[Before the Interviewer engages with residents, the data collector should select the appropriate ParcelID from the Samsung Galaxy tablet.]

Hi, I'm a student at Morehouse College and am working with the college's Urban Studies Program in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service to conduct a survey of Atlanta residents' attitudes about neighborhood trees. A letter was sent to your address last week explaining that someone from Morehouse College would stop by to ask for participation in the survey.

Would it be possible to speak with the person currently at home 18 or older who most recently had a birthday?

[If you are already speaking with the appropriate adult, continue reading the introduction.]

[If the appropriate adult comes to the door, repeat first paragraph and continue below.]

[If the adult with the most recent birthday is not available, schedule a time to return.]

[If the person who answers the door refuses to allow you to speak to the person 18 or older, record contact as a "refused" in question 32.]

Morehouse College is conducting a survey, in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service, on residents' interest in city trees in their neighborhoods. Researchers would like to understand better how people's attitudes and concerns about trees may affect environmental quality in the neighborhoods where people live.

This information will help Morehouse's Department of Urban Planning develop ways to include people's opinions about trees into its urban planning curriculum and also to develop better planning models that may be used to advise city planning. Results from this survey will be combined with data collected earlier on the number and kinds of trees in this neighborhood. The U.S. Forest Service will also use this information to develop a better understanding of residents' interest in city trees; it will also provide some indications of how the agency can better partner with urban communities to protect and promote urban greening.

The survey should take 15 minutes or less to complete, including time to hear these instructions. Participation in this survey is voluntary, and you may skip any question or stop responding at any time. The answers you provide will be kept strictly confidential. If you have any questions about the survey, you may contact Dr. Ebenezer Aka at Morehouse College or Dr. Cassandra Johnson Gaither with the U.S. Forest Service. Their contact information and other information about the survey are on this sheet.

[Hand information sheet to respondent].

If the survey is completed today, this is the only time you will be contacted about this survey; there are no follow-ups. Thank you very much for your cooperation!

Is this a good time to answer a few questions?

[If yes, continue below, if not, reschedule interview.]

I'll start out with a few questions about your neighborhood, move to questions about trees in your neighborhood and the city, and finally ask you a few questions about yourself. When I ask about your "neighborhood," I'm talking about the Neighborhood Planning Unit or NPU that you live in. For you, this is roughly the area between [streets demarcating NPU boundaries are populated].

1. Is there a neighborhood or community improvement group in your neighborhood? For example, is there an organized group that organizes neighborhood yard sales or festivals, or acts as a Watch Group to help prevent crimes?

Yes

No (skip to question 4)

Not now, but there was in the past (skip to question 4)

I don't know (skip to question 4)

2. How active is this group in addressing neighborhood or community issues?

Very active

Somewhat active

Not very involved

I don't know

3. How active are you in this neighborhood improvement group?
