UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Dear Applicant:

Thank you for your interest in the Title VI National Resource Centers (NRC) and Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships programs. This application package includes the instructions and forms required to complete and submit your Fiscal Year (FY) 2014 grant application to the U.S. Department of Education (Department). Also included is the technical review form containing the selection criteria that the external review panels will use to evaluate your application.

The NRC program makes awards to institutions of higher education (IHEs) or consortia of IHEs to establish, strengthen, and operate nationally recognized foreign language and area or international studies centers or programs. Grant awards may be used to support undergraduate centers or comprehensive centers that provide training at undergraduate, graduate, and professional levels.

The FLAS Fellowships program provides allocations of academic year and summer fellowships to IHEs or consortia of IHEs to assist meritorious undergraduate students and graduate students undergoing training in modern foreign languages and related area or international studies.

For the NRC program, the FY 14 competition includes one absolute priority; two competitive preference priorities; and one invitational priority. For the FLAS program, the competition includes two competitive preference priorities and one invitational priority. We encourage you to develop application narratives that respond to these priorities, with particular attention paid to the competitive preference priorities. The Department is permitted to award additional points to applications that address the competitive preference priorities particularly well.

Also, for this competition we are requiring applicants to include more meaningful evaluation plans in their grant applications. To that end, the application package includes an evaluation guide to assist you with developing useful evaluation plans and performance measures for your projects.

Every grant competition provides opportunities for applicants to describe how their area studies, international studies and world language training programs meet the purposes of the NRC and FLAS programs and our nation's present and future globalization needs. We appreciate your unique contributions to international education and look forward to receiving your proposals.

Sincerely,

Lenore Yaffee Garcia
Acting Senior Director
International and Foreign Language Education

- (a) A student shall apply for a fellowship directly to an institution of higher education that has received an allocation of fellowships.
- (b) The applicant shall provide sufficient information to enable the institution to determine whether he or she is eligible to receive a fellowship and whether he or she should be selected to receive a fellowship.

(Authority: 20 U.S.C. 1122)

Subpart C—How Does the Secretary Select an Institution for an Allocation of Fellowships?

§ 657.20 How does the Secretary evaluate an institutional application for an allocation of fellowships?

- (a) The Secretary evaluates an institutional application for an allocation of fellowships on the basis of the quality of the applicant's Center or program. The applicant's Center or program is evaluated and approved under the criteria in §657.21.

[61 FR 50202, Sept. 24, 1996, as amended at 70 FR 13375, Mar. 21, 2005]

§ 657.21 What criteria does the Secretary use in selecting institutions for an allocation of fellowships?

The Secretary evaluates an institutional application for an allocation of fellowships on the basis of the criteria in this section.

- (a) Foreign language and area studies fellowships awardee selection procedures. The Secretary reviews each application to determine whether the selection plan is of high quality, showing how awards will be advertised, how students apply, what selection criteria are used, who selects the fellows, when each step will take place, and how the process will result in awards being made to correspond to any announced priorities.
- (b) Quality of staff resources. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—

- (1) The extent to which teaching faculty and other staff are qualified for the current and proposed activities and training programs, are provided professional development opportunities (including overseas experience), and participate in teaching, supervising, and advising students;
 - (2) The adequacy of applicant staffing and oversight arrangements and the extent to which faculty from a variety of departments, professional schools, and the library are involved; and
 - (3) The extent to which the applicant, as part of its nondiscriminatory employment practices, encourages applications for employment from persons who are members of groups that have been traditionally underrepresented, such as members of racial or ethnic minority groups, women, persons with disabilities, and the elderly.
- (c) Impact and evaluation. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The extent to which the applicant's activities and training programs have contributed to an improved supply of specialists on the program's subject as shown through indices such as undergraduate and graduate enrollments and placement data; and the extent to which the applicant supplies a clear description of how the applicant will provide equal access and treatment of eligible project participants who are members of groups that have been traditionally underrepresented, such as members of racial or ethnic minority groups, women, persons with disabilities, and the elderly;
 - (2) The extent to which the applicant provides an evaluation plan that is comprehensive and objective and that will produce quantifiable, outcome-measure-oriented data; and the extent to which recent evaluations have been used to improve the applicant's program;
 - (3) The degree to which fellowships awarded by the applicant address national needs; and
 - (4) The applicant's record of placing students into post-graduate employment, education, or training in areas of national need and the applicant's stated efforts to increase the number of such students that go into such placements.
- (d) Commitment to the subject area on which the applicant or program focuses. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The extent to which the institution provides financial and other support to the operation of the applicant, teaching staff for the applicant's subject area, library resources, and linkages with institutions abroad; and
 - (2) The extent to which the institution provides financial support to students in fields related to the applicant's teaching program.
- (e) Strength of library. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The strength of the institution's library holdings (both print and non-print, English and foreign language) for students; and the extent to which the institution provides financial support for the acquisition of library materials and for library staff in the subject area of the applicant; and
 - (2) The extent to which research materials at other institutions are available to students through cooperative arrangements with other libraries or on-line databases.
- (f) Quality of the applicant's non-language instructional program. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The quality and extent of the applicant's course offerings in a variety of disciplines, including the extent to which courses in the applicant's subject matter are available in the institution's professional schools;
 - (2) The extent to which the applicant offers depth of specialized course coverage in one or more disciplines on the applicant's subject area;
 - (3) The extent to which the institution employs a sufficient number of teaching faculty to enable the applicant to carry out its purposes and the extent to which instructional assistants are provided with pedagogy training; and
 - (4) The extent to which interdisciplinary courses are offered for students.
- (g) Quality of the applicant's language instructional program. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The extent to which the applicant provides instruction in the languages of the applicant's subject area and the extent to which students enroll in the study of the languages of the subject area through programs or instruction offered by the applicant or other providers;
 - (2) The extent to which the applicant provides three or more levels of language training and the extent to which courses in disciplines other than language, linguistics, and literature are offered in appropriate foreign languages;
 - (3) Whether sufficient numbers of language faculty are available to teach the languages and levels of instruction described in the application and the extent to which language teaching staff (including faculty and instructional assistants) have been exposed to current language pedagogy training appropriate for performance-based teaching; and
 - (4) The quality of the language program as measured by the performance-based instruction being used or developed, the adequacy of resources for language teaching and practice, and language proficiency requirements.
- (h) Quality of curriculum design. The Secretary reviews each application to determine—
- (1) The extent to which the applicant's curriculum provides training options for students from a variety of disciplines and professional fields and the extent to which these programs and their requirements (including language requirements) are appropriate for an applicant in this subject area and result in graduate training programs of high quality;
 - (2) The extent to which the applicant provides academic and career advising services for students; and
 - (3) The extent to which the applicant has established formal arrangements for students to conduct research or study abroad and the extent to which these arrangements are used; and the extent to which the institution facilitates student access to other institutions' study abroad and summer language programs.
- (i) Priorities. If one or more competitive priorities have been established under §657.22, the Secretary reviews each application for information that shows the extent to which the Center or program meets these priorities.

Abstract

Applicants are required to provide a one-page abstract. An effective abstract will assist reviewers in seeing how the proposed project relates to the purposes and priorities of the program(s) under which that you are submitting an application. The abstract should summarize the activities and intended outcomes of the project for the FY 2014-2017 grant period and indicate the absolute, competitive, and invitational priorities to be addressed in your application. Applicants should refrain from touting your institutional history with the NRC and FLAS programs; we ask that the abstract focus instead on the currently-proposed project and its future impact.

Provide an overview of the Center's or Program's unique characteristics, including but not limited to its mission; world area or thematic focus; the internal and external constituencies served; degree programs; enhancement activities; the faculty; area studies, international studies, and language courses; library resources; and outreach.

Bear in mind that your application abstract introduces you to the reviewers. Make every effort, therefore, to provide an engaging and clear picture about you and your proposed project from the outset.

Acronyms Guide

Include an acronyms guide to identify the entities that will be referenced throughout the application. Use acronyms wisely, however, as the overuse of acronyms can detract from the information being presented. Write out the name occasionally so that the reader is reminded of what you are describing, without constantly having to refer to the acronyms list.

Project Narrative (Response to the Selection Criteria)

The Project Narrative is the section of the application where applicants respond to the selection criteria for the NRC and FLAS programs. The Project Narrative must adhere to the page limitations and the specific technical guidelines outlined in the Notice Inviting Applications published in the Federal Register. You are permitted to use tables and charts in this section to convey information more efficiently and effectively. Follow the technical guidelines provided in the notice regarding the spacing and font requirements for tables and charts.

Only the summary list of the NRC and FLAS selection criteria appears below. Please see the program regulations for the criteria descriptions and sub-factors for NRC in §656.21 (Comprehensive National Resource Center); §656.22 (Undergraduate National Resource Center); and, for FLAS in §657.21.

For both the National Resource Centers program and the Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships program, the IMPACT AND EVALUATION selection criterion is a heavily weighted—NRC (30 points) and FLAS (25 points).

In an effort to provide applicants more guidance about developing their evaluation plans and what it means “to evaluate” Title VI and Fulbright-Hays projects, IFLE program staff, in conjunction with IMPAQ International, developed guidance for understanding your role regarding Government and Performance and Results Act (GPRA) measures and project-specific measures. We also developed guidance to assist applicants in responding to the “Impact and Evaluation” selection criterion.

This next section is intended to provide NRC and FLAS applicants with more substantive information on how to respond to the “Impact and Evaluation” selection criterion in a more compelling manner. This section also includes instructions for completing the new performance measure forms (PMFs) that you are required to include in the application Appendices.

Guidance on Developing an Evaluation Plan

IFLE Grant Project Evaluation

A strong project proposal by an applicant for an IFLE grant includes a well-designed evaluation plan that is based on clearly stated goals and objectives. The evaluation plan must address all IFLE GPRA measures, as well as include project-specific measures that are tied to the project's goals and objectives. The evaluation plan also must identify how each of the specific objectives will be achieved, and establish the quantitative and qualitative measures that will be used to demonstrate the successful implementation of the proposed project. The Performance-Measure Form (PMF) serves as a guide for applicants to plan and articulate key aspects of a well-designed evaluation plan.

IFLE offers applicant institutions the following suggestions to consider in developing the Impact and Evaluation section of the grant application.

Developing an Evaluation Plan

Working with an Independent Project Evaluator

Please note that an independent project evaluator may not be required for every IFLE grant program. Applicants and grantees should consult with their IFLE program officer and refer to program-specific materials for guidance.

The independent project evaluator should be involved in the project throughout the entire grant cycle from the proposal development phase through the project's funding and implementation to ensure that a well-designed evaluation plan is developed and implemented. The independent project evaluator works with key project personnel to draft measurable objectives, identify appropriate progress indicators and benchmarks, and to formalize the data collection, calculation, and analytical methodologies. The primary role of the independent project evaluator is to provide technical support and expertise to the project in order to best demonstrate its progress toward achieving stated goals and objectives. The independent project evaluator may also provide support and guidance for the development of a dissemination plan to publicize the project results to internal and external entities.

A grant applicant may wish to collaborate with other projects on a given campus to pool resources and share the cost of a professional evaluator. The guidance provided in this document is intended to help maximize evaluation resources by streamlining an evaluation process and by supporting collaboration between key project personnel and an independent evaluator. Very small projects may have very limited funds available to compensate an evaluator. In such cases, limited resources are best expended on working with an evaluator at the project's start, as opposed to its later stages.

To ensure both the quality and the credibility of the evaluation, it should be conducted by a qualified evaluator with appropriate expertise and training. The evaluator should be independent, whether the evaluator is internal or external to the grant project. The applicant should provide a plan to ensure that the evaluator maintains sufficient independence from the project team, thus avoiding any potential or perceived conflict of interest.

Developing Clear Goals and Objectives

A well-designed evaluation plan includes clearly articulated goals, measurable objectives, and a way to collect concrete data to substantiate the project's progress toward achieving its goals. The evaluation plan should be limited to a few clear and specific objectives that are linked directly to the proposed goals of the project and that can be measured. The applicant/grantee should consider the following when developing measurable objectives and planning for data collection:

1. What will indicate or demonstrate that the project is meeting its goals? Describe the expected measurable outcomes.
2. What types and sources of data will best demonstrate that the project is achieving, or will achieve, its objectives? Identify the data and its sources that can serve as indicators or benchmarks that the project is meeting, or will meet, the intended outcomes.
3. How will the data be collected? Describe access and frequency.
4. How will the data be analyzed and reported? Describe the methodology and key personnel responsible.
5. Will the results demonstrate the project's proposed outcome and impact (e.g., an increase in qualified language instructors, higher graduation rate in international studies, better employment rate of program graduates, etc.)? Describe how the results may demonstrate short-term and long-term outcomes and impact.

Examples of possible project-specific quantitative objectives include:

- Increase the number of students completing advanced courses in priority languages;
- Increase the number of students in business, health, or science majors graduating with foreign language skills;
- Increase the number of study abroad opportunities for students on campus; or,
- Increase the number of certificates and degrees conferred in targeted programs of study.

Examples of possible project-specific qualitative objectives include:

- Improve employment opportunities for students who possess advanced language skills and international experience;
- Strengthen collaboration between foreign language departments, international education, and other disciplines; or,
- Improve quality of assessment tools for priority and/or less-commonly-taught languages.

Examples of specific activities that may support project objectives include:

- Recruit and hire of qualified priority language faculty; or,
- Create or increase professional development and training sessions for faculty.

Progress indicators that relate to the quantitative and qualitative examples cited in the above sections include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Increase in the number of new faculty positions in priority and/or less-commonly-taught languages, area studies courses, or interdisciplinary courses that are institutionalized after grant support has ended;
- Increase in the number and type of courses developed, piloted, and subsequently submitted to the institution's review board for inclusion in the college catalog for the upcoming academic year.

Developing Evaluation Questions

An applicant should formulate evaluation questions that interest all stakeholders and audiences related to the proposed project, and align the questions with appropriate information gathering techniques.

1. Who/what will change?
2. When will the change(s) take place?
3. How much change is expected?
4. How will change be measured, recorded, or documented?

Planning Data Collection and Analysis

In order to show change, baseline data must be included in the final evaluation plan, submitted to the program office, once the grant is awarded. Applicants should determine if baseline data already exist and where to find them. Data collection instruments that are not readily available need to be developed.. Data collection instruments may include surveys, standardized tests, exams, focus groups, and topic guides. Institutions may have additional instruments that are specific to the proposed project. The final evaluation plan must specify the types and sources of data that will be collected and describe how the data will be collected, including access and frequency. The plan must also describe how the data will be compiled, analyzed, and reported, as well as the methodology that will be used and key personnel responsible for these tasks. The institutions should work with evaluation specialists to develop a detailed analysis plan to analyze the data and interpret results. In addition, the evaluation plan should include a timeline to delineate tasks and specify when and how progress benchmarks or indicators will be met. The timeline will help projects to stay on track toward achieving their goals.

Guidance to NRC Program Applicants

The Title VI international education programs' overarching goal is to maintain a U.S. higher education system with the capacity to produce experts in less commonly taught languages and area studies who are capable of contributing to the needs of U.S. government, academic, and business institutions. Each IFLE grant program addresses a specific objective related to this overarching goal. The National Resource Centers (NRC) program provides grants to institutions of higher education or consortia of institutions of higher education to establish, strengthen, and operate comprehensive and undergraduate Centers. These Centers are intended to be national resources for teaching any modern foreign language. The Centers provide instruction in fields needed to promote full understanding of areas, regions, or countries in which the modern foreign language is commonly used, research and training in international studies and the international and foreign language aspects of professional and other fields of study, and outreach on a national, regional, and local basis.

NRC Performance Measure Form (PMF)

ATTENTION APPLICANTS: READ CAREFULLY

For your application PMFs, COMPLETE ITEMS 1, 2, and 3 ONLY.

IFLE will request fully completed PMFs if the application is recommended for funding. Include your NRC PMFs in the appendices.

ALL grantees must report Project-Specific Measures on an annual basis. You must create a PMF for each Project Goal in order to set a baseline. Figure 1 shows a blank template. An example of a PMF completed for NRC Project-Specific Measures is provided in Figure 2.

Instructions for Completing NRC Project-Specific PMF

1. Project Goal Statement – Each project will have more than one goal, such as “Expand outreach for foreign language instruction in LCTLs to under-resourced post-secondary institutions” or “Expand the center’s course offerings in South Asian area studies.” Complete a separate PMF template for each project goal. State the first project-specific goal in the first (header) row of the template, then proceed to steps 2-7 below. Repeat the process for each project-specific goal.

2. Performance Measures – State the project-specific measure in an objective and time-bound manner. Make sure that the units of measure (e.g., number of courses, number of students, etc.) are well defined.
3. Activities – Fill in the major activities that the institution will undertake to achieve the project-specific performance measure goal.
4. Data/Indicators – State the data or indicators that will be used to track progress of each activity stated in #2. Because the performance measure might not change from the baseline in the early year(s) of the grant, supporting indicators will be used to track and demonstrate progress.
5. Frequency – State period of measurement (e.g., quarterly, by semester, or annually).
6. Data Source – State the source of the data (e.g., center records or university registrar).
7. Baseline (BL) and Targets (T1-T4) – State the level of each measure at the time that the application is submitted as the “Baseline” and provide the target levels at the end of each grant year. Where the measure specifies “new,” the baseline is stated as the existing total at the time of the application and the targets are stated as the incremental increase.

NRC Impact and Evaluation Selection Criterion

This section describes the factors that the reviewers will use to score the project evaluation narratives in submitted grant applications. The following factors are included in the “Impact and Evaluation” selection criterion in the NRC undergraduate center regulations and the NRC comprehensive center regulations. Each question is followed by guidance to help the applicant provide information that will enable reviewers to award the appropriate level of points for the applicant’s planned impact and evaluation efforts. The applicant should provide actual baseline numbers, including trend data, if possible, when answering the following questions in the grant application. If the applicant has not tracked the data requested, the applicant should explain what mechanisms it will put into place to collect the desired data and to track progress toward the proposed project’s goals and objectives.

For all NRC applicants, to what extent do the center’s activities and training programs have a significant impact on the university, community, region, and the nation as shown through indices such as enrollments, graduate placement data, participation rates for events, and usage of center resources?

The NRC Program’s primary goal in providing funding to eligible institutions of higher education or consortia of such institutions is to enable them to establish, strengthen, and operate undergraduate and comprehensive foreign language and area or international studies centers and programs. The program also supports the development of qualified instructors of the less commonly taught languages and of interdisciplinary projects that support students in the science, technology, engineering, and mathematics fields to achieve foreign language proficiency. Applicants should describe how their proposed activities advance the program’s goals and regulations and help to meet national needs in foreign language, area, and international studies.

An applicant may demonstrate a project’s impact through official records that evidence substantial increases in coursework, enrollment, and graduates in foreign language, area, or international studies, and in the number of qualified instructors in critical or priority languages. Evidence of an increase of graduates from other disciplines with foreign language, area, and international skills also demonstrates a project’s success. However, the real significant impact of any program is most evident in its graduate placement data. Data of successful graduate placement indicate that the program is attaining its long-term outcome of meeting the nation’s workforce needs. The Department of Education (ED) seeks projects that have data demonstrating that their participants have a higher graduate placement rate than other projects, and that the project’s success can be replicated.

It is difficult for programs to gather graduate placement data because they must have ongoing relationships with their graduates to do so. Yet tracking and helping students find placements in academic, governmental, and private sector jobs that draw upon their foreign language and area study knowledge are among the most tangible and direct ways that IFLE programs achieve their stated goal: “to meet the nation’s security and economic needs through the development and maintenance of a national capacity in foreign languages, and area and international studies.” In fact, post-graduation placements have become a concern and interest of Congress, since those placements represent a tangible return on taxpayers’ investment and directly relate to ED’s mission, which is “to promote student achievement and preparation for global competitiveness by fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access.” Therefore, an applicant should emphasize how it plans to assist students and track their job placements after graduation. An applicant should also provide detailed information on how it plans to sustain the center's activities and training programs through institution-wide efforts. An applicant may discuss institutional commitment and support, as well as faculty hiring and development in these areas.

For undergraduate NRC applicants, to what extent do students matriculate into advanced language and area or international studies programs or related professional programs?

The guidance on answering this question is related to the background and advice given for the previous question regarding post-graduate placements. Since the question's emphasis here is on undergraduates, an applicant's answer should illustrate how the applicant will track students and encourage them to continue on to advanced language and area or international studies programs.

An applicant may provide detailed information on its past and present efforts to develop degree and professional programs in foreign language, area, or international studies, and any cross-discipline collaborations in which it has engaged to attract and graduate more students with advanced language or international education backgrounds.

For all applicants, to what extent will provisions be made for equal access and treatment for eligible students and other participants who are members of groups that have been traditionally under-represented (such as members of racial or ethnic minority groups, women, persons with disabilities, and the elderly)?

Equal access to educational opportunities is not only part of ED's mission "to promote student achievement and preparation for global competitiveness by fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access," but also is an explicit part of the NRC program's regulations. Therefore, it is important that applicants demonstrate how they will implement the equal access requirements of NRC funding. Current statistics show that a vast majority of participants in international education and study abroad programs are white students from middle class backgrounds and that students from other minority or ethnic groups have limited access to international education and study abroad programs. (IIE-Open Doors 2012)

Applicants should demonstrate that they have a track record of past success achieving the equal access objective, and, at a minimum, explain their plans to increase the number of participants from minority and underrepresented groups and to retain them.

For all applicants, to what extent does the applicant provide an evaluation plan that is comprehensive, with objectives that will produce quantifiable, outcome-measure-oriented data?

The applicant should review the section entitled "Evaluation of NRC Projects" starting on page 6 of this guidance document. This guidance document simplifies and demonstrates the key elements of a comprehensive and objective evaluation plan. Applicants must clearly express: Who/what will change? When will the change(s) take place? How much change is expected? What are the proposed data collection methodologies? Are the credentials, qualifications, and impartial statuses of those who will carry out the evaluation plan sufficient to ensure that the results will be valid and reliable?

For all applicants, to what extent have results from recent evaluations been used by the applicant to improve its program?

ED seeks information from applicants on whether and how they have used past project evaluation results and findings to inform their strategic and operational decision-making. Applicants should describe the types of evaluations and studies that they have carried out in past similar grant projects, what the results of those evaluations and studies were, and how the findings will inform and improve what the applicants propose to do. ED is interested particularly in applicants that provide evidence-based results from past grant projects or similar efforts that indicate their success in achieving long-term outcomes that advance the Program's goals, and in applicants' proposals to scale up and institutionalize these past successes.

For all NRC applicants, to what degree do activities of the center address national needs, and generate information for and disseminate information to the public?

One of the overarching goals of the NRC program is for participating centers to disseminate information to the public that addresses national needs for expertise in critical languages, international, and area studies. Centers may disseminate a range of information: research studies' findings or results of surveys that have been funded by NRC; international or cultural activities hosted by the center; new coursework, curricula, or degree programs created and offered by the center; scholarship, fellowship, or employment opportunities available; or any other type of project outcomes and achievements. By disseminating this information, the center informs the public of the ways in which it is meeting national needs, as well as promoting more awareness and interest in supporting foreign language, international, and area studies. The Center can disseminate information to advance a variety of goals through a number of different channels and to vastly different intended audiences. Its efforts may range from reaching out to the underrepresented students and faculty on campus, to engaging local communities and educational institutions including K-12 and community colleges, to launching a campaign to reach a broader audience nationally. Applicants' answers to this question may include descriptions of postings on internet sites, presentations at conferences and workshops, articles published in peer reviewed journals, appearances on national broadcast news, as well as private briefings to the U.S. State Department, the Department of Defense, and members of Congress and their staffers. This is a non-exhaustive illustrative list only. Applicants must identify the mechanisms that they have used and will continue to use, as well as any describe new mechanisms that they intend to initiate to enable them to generate and disseminate information that addresses national needs.

For all NRC applicants, what is the Center's record of placing students into post-graduate employment, education, or training in areas of national need, and the center's stated efforts to increase the number of such students that go into such placements?

As stated in the answer to the first selection criteria question regarding the "Impact and Evaluation" of NRC grants, placement into post-graduate employment, education, or training in areas of national need is of paramount importance to the NRC's congressional funders, OMB, the ED's Budget Service, and IFLE senior leadership. It is critical to ED that a successful NRC grantee track placement results and assist graduates in the placement process. Applicants should highlight past successful strategies that they used to track graduates after they finished their programs and to obtain reliable data on post-graduate employment, and describe how these strategies will be implemented with future grant participants. Applicants should present their track records and emphasize ongoing initiatives that rise to the level of a promising practice.

FLAS Performance Measure Form (PMF)

ATTENTION APPLICANTS: READ CAREFULLY

For your application PMFs, COMPLETE ITEMS 1, 2, and 3 ONLY.

IFLE will request fully completed PMFs if the application is recommended for funding. Include your NRC PMFs in the appendices.

ALL grantees must report Project-Specific Measures on an annual basis. The institutions that are recommended for funding will be required to submit a fully completed PMF for each Project Goal in order to set a baseline. A blank PMF is provided in Figure 3. An example of a PMF completed for FLAS Project-Specific Measures is provided in Figure 4.

Instructions for Completing Project-Specific PMF

1. Project Goal Statement – Each project will have more than one goal, such as “Increase FLAS training opportunities for professional school students” or “Increase FLAS training opportunities for STEM students.” Complete a separate PMF template row for each project goal. State the first project-specific goal in the first (header) row of the template, then proceed to steps 2-7 below. Repeat the process for each project-specific goal.
2. Performance Measures – State the project-specific measure in an objective and time-bound manner. Make sure the units of measure (e.g., number of courses, number of students, etc.) are well defined

3. Activities – Fill in the major activities that the institution will undertake to achieve the project-specific performance measure goal.
4. Data / Indicators – State the data or indicators that will be used to track the progress of each activity stated in #2. Note that one of the indicators should be synonymous with the performance measure, while the other indicators will be used to track progress toward meeting the performance measure. Since the performance measure might not change from the baseline in the early year(s) of the grant, supporting indicators will be used to track and demonstrate progress.
5. Frequency – State period of measurement (e.g., quarterly, by semester, or annually).
6. Data Source – State the source of the data (e.g., center records or university registrar).
7. Baseline (BL) and Targets (T1-T4) – State the level of each measure at the time that the application is submitted as the “Baseline” and provide the target levels at the end of each grant year. Where the measure specifies “new,” the baseline is stated as the existing total at the time of the application and the targets are stated as the incremental increase.

FLAS Program Impact and Evaluation Selection Criterion

This section describes the selection factors that the reviewers will use to evaluate the “Impact and Evaluation” narrative in your submitted applications. The text in bold below are the selection criteria factors for the FLAS application. Each factor is followed by guidance to help the applicant provide information that will enable reviewers to award the appropriate level of points for the applicant’s planned impact and evaluation efforts.

(1a) The extent to which the applicant’s activities and training programs have contributed to an improved supply of specialists on the program’s subject as shown through indices such as undergraduate and graduate enrollments and placement data.

An applicant may demonstrate a project’s impact by providing official records that evidence substantial increases in coursework, enrollment, and graduates in foreign language, area, or international studies, and in the number of qualified instructors hired to teach critical or priority languages. Grant reviewers also look favorably upon applicants that can demonstrate that the number of graduates from other disciplines with foreign language, area, and international skills has increased. However, the real significant impact of any program is evidenced by its graduate placement data. Successful placement data indicate that the program is attaining its long-term outcome of meeting the nation’s workforce needs. ED seeks to fund projects that have data indicating that their participants have higher graduate placement rates than others and that their successes can be replicated.

It is difficult for programs to collect graduate placement data since they must have an ongoing relationship with their graduates to do so. Yet tracking and helping students find placements in academic, government, and private sector jobs that draw upon their foreign language and area study knowledge are among the most tangible and direct ways that IFLE programs achieve their stated goal: “to meet the nation’s security and economic needs through the development and maintenance of a national capacity in foreign languages, and area and international studies.” In fact, post-graduation placements have become a concern and interest of Congress, since those placements represent a tangible return on taxpayers’ investment and directly relate to ED’s mission, which is “to promote student achievement and preparation for global competitiveness by fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access.” Therefore, an applicant should place special emphasis on describing how it plans to assist and track students’ placements after graduation.

(1b) The extent to which the applicant supplies a clear description of how the applicant will provide equal access and treatment of eligible project participants who are members of groups that have been traditionally underrepresented, such as members of racial or ethnic minority groups, women, persons with disabilities, and the elderly.

Equal access to educational opportunities is not only part of ED’s mission “to promote student achievement and preparation for global competitiveness by fostering educational excellence and ensuring equal access,” but is an explicit component of the FLAS program’s regulations. Therefore, it is important that applicants demonstrate how they will implement the equal access requirement of FLAS funding. Current statistics show that a vast majority of participants in international education and study abroad programs are white students from middle class backgrounds and that students from other minority or ethnic groups have limited access to international education and study abroad programs. (IIE-Open Doors 2012)

Applicants should demonstrate that they have a track record of past success in achieving the equal access objective, and, at a minimum, explain their plans both to increase the number of participants from minority and underrepresented groups and to retain them.

(2a) The extent to which the applicant provides an evaluation plan that is comprehensive and objective and that will produce quantifiable, outcome-measure-oriented data.

The applicant should review the section entitled “Evaluation of IFLE Grant Projects” starting on page 4 of this guidance document. This guidance document intends to simplify and demonstrate the key elements of a comprehensive and objective evaluation plan. Applicants must clearly express: Who/what will change? When will the change(s) take place? How much change is expected? What are your proposed data collection methodologies? Are the credentials, qualifications, and impartial statuses of those who will carry out the evaluation plan sufficient to ensure that the results will be valid and reliable?

(2b) The extent to which recent evaluations have been used to improve the applicant's program.

ED looks favorably on applicants that can demonstrate how they have used past project evaluation results and findings to inform their strategic and operational decision-making. Applicants should discuss the types of evaluations and studies that they have conducted in past similar grant projects, provide the results of those evaluations and studies, and describe how the findings will inform and improve what they propose to do. Especially important to ED is the extent to which applicants provide evidence-based results from past grant projects or similar efforts that indicate long-term outcomes in meeting the program's goals, and illustrate how applicants propose to scale up and institutionalize them.

(3) The degree to which fellowships awarded by the applicant address national needs.

ED's stated goal for IFLE is "to meet the nation's security and economic needs through the development and maintenance of a national capacity in foreign languages, and area and international studies." Furthermore, the Higher Education Opportunity Act requires that the Secretary of Education consult with federal agency heads in order to receive recommendations regarding areas of national need for expertise in foreign languages and world regions. The link below provides the areas of national need identified by the Secretary, consisting of the priority languages that are less commonly taught and the world regions:

Reviewers will rate applications that address these priorities more highly than those that do not. Applicants should demonstrate and provide their track records and their plans to attract and support fellows in these areas of priority.

(4a) The applicant's record of placing students into post-graduate employment, education, or training in areas of national need.

As stated in the answer to the first selection criteria question regarding the "Impact and Evaluation" of FLAS grants, placement into post-graduate employment, education, or training in areas of national need is of paramount importance to FLAS's congressional funders, OMB, ED's Budget Service, and IFLE senior leadership. A successful FLAS grantee will track those placement results and assist graduates in the placement process. Applicants, thus, should highlight successful strategies that they have used to track graduates after they leave their programs in order to obtain reliable data on post-graduate employment, and should demonstrate how these strategies will be implemented with future FLAS fellows. Applicants should present their track records and emphasize ongoing initiatives that rise to the level of a promising practice.

(4b) The applicant's stated efforts to increase the number of such students that go into such placements.

A successful evaluation plan will measure the project's success performing the stated activities; even more importantly, it will show how the provision of these activities results in achieving the GPRA and project-specific outcomes. The applicant should develop measures that effectively tell the project's story of success and result in performance improvement.

For instance, to improve results for the second FLAS GPRA measure regarding the employment of FLAS fellows who have graduated, the applicant may want to work with potential employers at the project's outset to design curricula and training that match their needs, and thereby to improve the probability of future employment for graduates. A positive quantitative indicator of future success might include the number of students able to secure internships before graduation. That measure could be buttressed by measuring activities that would bring potential employers into contact with students.

Applicants should design programs that equip graduates with the skills necessary to be employed in an area of national need. Applicants also should plan and measure activities with future employers, such as job fairs or events planned in tandem with potential employers, to further advance the employment goal. In this way, the applicants' objective measures will not just measure success but will also facilitate it by promoting the behaviors that lead to success.

Overview of GPRA Measures, Program Evaluation, and Project Evaluation

The U.S. Congress passed the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) of 1993 and the GPRA Modernization Act of 2010 to assess and improve federally funded programs. GPRA requires that federal agencies document the achievements of grant-funded programs. Specifically, GPRA requires federal agencies, such as the U.S. Department of Education, to develop and report quantifiable annual and long-term measures to Congress. GPRA stipulates that these measures be limited in number, specific, and have baselines and targets that are ambitious, yet achievable.¹ Performance reporting occurs at the program level, meaning that the U.S. Department of Education (ED) aggregates data from all IFLE grantees and reports on measures of the IFLE program overall. ED's challenge is to articulate program-level measures that are relevant to several grant programs and that capture the achievements of many disparate grantees. ED's Budget Service and the U.S. Office of Management and Budget (OMB) review and approve IFLE's GPRA measures to make sure that the measures reflect the programs' overall goals. Therefore, once approved, GPRA measures remain relatively constant over time and all IFLE grantees must report them to ED.

As required by GPRA, ED has developed a strategic plan that reflects its organizational priorities and also integrates IFLE's mission and program authorities. ED's stated goal for IFLE is "to meet the nation's security and economic needs through the development and maintenance of a national capacity in foreign languages, and area and international studies."

¹ Section 200.5 of OMB Circular No. A-11 (2012) reads, "The GPRA Modernization Act requires agencies to set long-term goals and objectives as well as specific, near-term performance goals. Agency leaders at all levels of the organization are accountable for choosing goals and indicators wisely and for setting ambitious, yet realistic targets." (http://www.whitehouse.gov/sites/default/files/omb/assets/a11_current_year/s200.pdf)

GOVERNMENT PERFORMANCE AND RESULTS ACT (GPRA)

What is GPRA?

The Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA) requires all federal agencies to manage their activities with attention to the consequences of those activities. Each agency is to clearly state what it intends to accomplish, identify the resources required, and periodically report their progress to Congress. In so doing, it is expected that the GPRA will contribute to improvements in accountability for the expenditures of public funds, improve Congressional decision-making through more objective information on the effectiveness of federal programs, and promote a new government focus on results, service delivery, and customer satisfaction.

How has the Department of Education Responded to the GPRA Requirements?

As required by GPRA, the Department of Education has prepared a strategic plan for 2014-2018. This plan reflects the Department's priorities and integrates them with its mission and program authorities and describes how the Department will work to improve education for all children and adults in the U.S. The 2014-2018 plan includes the following six goals:

- Goal 1: Increase college access, affordability, quality, and completion by improving postsecondary education and lifelong learning opportunities for youth and adults*
- Goal 2: Improve the elementary and secondary system's ability to consistently deliver excellent instruction aligned with rigorous academic standards while providing effective support services to close achievement and opportunity gaps, and ensure all students graduate high school college- and career-ready*
- Goal 3: Improve the health, social-emotional, and cognitive outcomes for all children from birth through third grade, so that all children, particularly those with high needs, are on track for graduating from high school college- and career-ready*
- Goal 4: Increase educational opportunities for and reduce discrimination against underserved students so that all students are well-positioned to succeed*
- Goal 5: Enhance the education system's ability to continuously improve through better and more widespread use of data, research, and evaluation, evidence, transparency, innovation, and technology*
- Goal 6: Improve the organizational capacities of the Department to implement its strategic plan*

What are the Performance Indicators for the International Education Programs?

The Department's specific goal for the International Education Programs is "to meet the nation's security and economic needs through the development and maintenance of a national capacity in foreign languages, and area and international studies." The objective and performance indicators for the National Resource Centers Program (NRC) and the Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships Program are as follows:

NRC Program

The objective of the National Resource Centers program is to provide grants to institutions of higher education or consortia of institutions of higher education to establish, strengthen, and operate comprehensive and undergraduate language and area or international studies centers. The Department will use the following measures to evaluate the overall success of the NRC program.

- (1.1) Percentage of NRC grants teaching intermediate or advanced courses in any of the priority languages as defined by the Secretary of Education
- (1.2) Percentage of NRC projects that increased the number of intermediate or advanced level language courses in the priority and/or LCTLs during the course of the grant period
- (1.3) Percentage of priority languages targeted by NRC as defined by the Secretary of Education taught at NRCs
- (1.4) Percentage of NRCs that increased the number of certificate, minor, or major degree programs in the priority and/or LCTLs, area studies, or international studies during the course of the four-year grant period

FLAS Program

The objective of the Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowship program is to provide academic year and summer fellowships to institutions of higher education to assist undergraduate and graduate students in foreign language and either area or international studies. The Department will use the following measures to evaluate the overall success of the FLAS program.

- (2.1) Percentage of FLAS fellows who improved their foreign language reading/writing, and/or listening/speaking scores by at least one ILR equivalent proficiency level
- (2.2) Percentage of FLAS graduated fellows who have secured employment that utilizes their foreign language and area studies skills within eight years of graduation based on FLAS tracking survey
- (2.3) Percentage of FLAS master's and doctoral degree program graduates who studied priority languages as defined by the Secretary of Education

APPENDICES

The following informational pieces comprise the application appendices. The appendices are not subject to the page limitations and technical requirements (font, spacing, etc.), and for the Project Narrative.

1. Project Budget

Use ED Form 524 Section A –BUDGET SUMMARY to show what the Center is requesting for all four-years of the grant cycle. ED Form 524 includes the budget categories below, but some categories are not applicable to the NRC and FLAS programs.

2. Fringe Benefits
3. Travel
4. Equipment (not applicable)
5. Supplies
6. Contractual (not applicable)
7. Construction (not applicable)

9. Total Direct Costs (lines 1-8)
10. Indirect Cost (not to exceed 8%)
The NRC program has a negotiated indirect cost rate; there is no indirect cost rate for the FLAS program
11. Training Stipends = the FLAS FELLOWSHIP FUNDS BEING REQUESTED
12. Total Costs (lines 9-11)

Enter the amounts requested for each budget category for Project Years 1- 4, columns (a)–(d). The timeframes for the project years are as follows:

- Project Year 1 (a): August 15, 2014-August 14, 2015
Project Year 2 (b): August 15, 2015-August 14, 2016
Project Year 3 (c): August 15, 2016-August 14, 2017
Project Year 4 (d): August 15, 2017-August 14, 2018

Read the instructions in the “Forms and Instructions” section for completing ED 524 Form Section A-Budget Summary and Section C-Budget Narrative for specific guidance for completing the ED 524 form and for presenting the budget narrative. When formulating the project budget, make sure that costs are allowable, allocable, reasonable, and justifiable.

The review of your application budget will be easier if you present all four years’ requests across the page. This allows the readers to see the fiscal progression of the project at-a-glance. To the extent possible, insert page numbers on the budget to cross-reference the budget line items to other sections of the application to substantiate relevance to the project. For the Section C- Budget Narrative, use the same categories that appear on the ED 524 Form (and above). Do not use categories that are unique to your institution’s fiscal accounts because these might not match the categories in the Department’s G5 System and IFLE’s International Resource Information System.

Please note that the ED 524 Section C Budget Narrative is not the same as the “Program Planning and Budget” (PPB) narrative in the Project Narrative. The PPB narrative discusses, among other factors, the activities to be conducted and how those activities will contribute to a strengthened program and whether you use the resources and personnel effectively to achieve the proposed objectives. It also indicates the costs associated with the activities. The PPB narrative DOES count against the page limitations.

Additional NRC Budget Preparation Tips

- Do not put the Project Director's/Principal Investigator's salary on the grant
- Do not put more than 50% of the salary of project related staff on the grant
- If necessary, applicants may request up to 100% of a language instructor's salary
- Do break out "travel" to show domestic travel and international travel and show the estimated number of trips and costs
- Do include in the Travel budget category the expenses for transportation, lodging, subsistence, and related items incurred by employees who are in travel status on official business of the Center. See more in J. 53 Travel costs (a) and (b) of the OMB Cost Principles
- Do include costs for transportation, lodging, subsistence, and related items incurred by non-employees of the institution in the Other budget category
- Do insert the Fringe Benefits percentages and amounts that comprise the FB packages
- Do read §§75.190 and 75.191 of the Education Department General Administrative Regulations (EDGAR) regarding consultation and consultation costs for projects that intend to develop curricula or instructional materials under the grant
- Do read EDGAR §§75.515 and 75.516 of EDGAR regarding the use of consultants and the compensation of consultants—employees of institutions of higher education
- Do consider "supplies" as any personal property having a unit acquisition cost of $5000 or less
- Do remember that EDGAR §75.708 prohibits sub-grants

- Do cross-reference other sections of the proposal

FLAS Budget (Training Stipends)

- Do not include indirect costs in the FLAS budget
- Do request undergraduate fellowships and graduate fellowships, as appropriate
- Do remember that you do not have to be an NRC to request/receive an allocation of FLAS fellowships
- Do present the FLAS budget to show the following:
 - o Number of undergraduate academic year fellowships x fellowship amount =
 $3 \times $15,000 = $45,000$
 - o Number of graduate academic year fellowships x fellowship amount =
 $5 \times $33,000 = $165,000$
 - o Number of summer fellowships x amount =
 $4 \times $7,500 = $30,000$
 - o Total FLAS allocation amount = $240,000

Enter $240,000 in line 11 Training Stipends on the ED 524 Form Section A-Budget Summary

This budget could be itemized further by specifying the number/amount of institutional payments for tuition and fees and the number/amount of subsistence allowances, e.g., $3 \times $10,000 = $30,000$; $3 \times $5,000 = $15,000$; Total Undergraduate AY fellowships = $45,000.

Intergovernmental Review, State Single Point of Contact

Executive Order 12372 (Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs)

This program falls under Executive Order 12372 (Intergovernmental Review of Federal Programs) and the regulations in 34 CFR Part 79. One of the objectives of the Executive order is to strengthen federalism--or the distribution of responsibility between localities, States, and the Federal government--by fostering intergovernmental partnerships. An aspect of this partnership is the process that State or local governments have devised for coordinating the review of proposed Federal financial grant applications.

The process for doing this requires grant applicants to contact their State Single Point of Contact for information on how this works. Multi-state applicants should follow procedures specific to each state.

Further information about the State Single Point of Contact process and a list of names by State can be found at:

http://www.whitehouse.gov/omb/grants_spoc

Absent specific State review programs, applicants may submit comments directly to the Department. All recommendations and comments must be mailed or hand-delivered by the date indicated in the actual application notice to the following address: The Secretary, EO 12372—CFDA #84.015A; 84.015B, U.S. Department of Education, room 7E200, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW., Washington, DC 20202.

Proof of mailing will be determined on the same basis as applications (see 34 CFR §75.102). Recommendations or comments may be hand-delivered until 4:30 p.m. (eastern time) on the closing date indicated in this notice.

Important note: The above address is not the same address as the one to which the applicant submits its completed applications. Do not send applications to the above address.

NRC and FLAS Reporting Requirements
International Education Resource Information System (IRIS)

If your center or program is awarded a new FY 2014 – FY 2017 grant(s) under the NRC and/or FLAS programs, you will be required to enter interim, annual, and final performance reports into the IRIS web based system. IFLE requires grantees to submit performance reports that provide the most current performance and financial expenditures information, in accordance with 34 CFR 75.118. We use this information to certify that grantees are making substantial progress toward project objectives and to make continuation awards.

You may view the IRIS performance reporting screens and instructions for the NRC and FLAS programs at

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Application Content

- Q1. *Our center has received NRC and FLAS grants in the past. Is it appropriate to refer to this in our application?
A. This is appropriate to demonstrate programmatic strength/growth, and to describe what you have institutionalized as a result of leveraging the Title VI support. It is not appropriate, however, to engage in lengthy discussions that are retrospectives, rather than relevant information.
- Q2. *What techniques does the U.S. Department of Education (US/ED) consider helpful for presenting the application narrative and other important information?
A. In presenting the application narrative (your responses to the selection criteria), we encourage you to follow the order of the selection criteria as listed on the Technical Review Form on pages (insert pages) in the application booklet. Additional useful techniques include: using cross-references in the budget and appendices, providing an acronyms list, and using tables and graphs to present information effectively.
- Q3. *Can an undergraduate National Resource Center request FLAS fellowships?
A. Yes. The applicant should keep in mind that meritorious undergraduate students are now eligible to receive FLAS awards. This means that applicants must describe in the portion of their application that addresses the FLAS program which students they intend to offer their allotted FLAS awards to (undergraduate, graduate, or both), and a description of the competitive application process that will be used to select the fellows. The applicant must also ensure that they incorporate the approved eligibility requirements into their FLAS competition.
- Q4. *Should we describe in the application our Center's "outreach" to institutions and people in other countries?
A. Yes, but not in response to the "Outreach Activities" selection criterion, which asks readers to evaluate the regional and national impact of an applicant's domestic activities. To the extent that your Center engages in projects that facilitate overseas study and research or professional development opportunities for U.S.-based students and educators, these activities might be relevant in addressing other selection criteria.
- Q5. *Our Center engages in outreach activities. Does that mean that we have fulfilled the Absolute Priority for National Resource Centers?
A. Not necessarily. "Outreach activities" include many projects that are not teacher training. To meet the absolute priority, applicants must include information that demonstrates the existence, development, and expansion of effective teacher training activities. Collaboration with Schools of Education and Local and State Education Agencies are good means by which to address this requirement.
- Q6. *What are Competitive and Invitational Priorities?
A. If an application addresses and meets the competitive preference priorities, additional points are awarded to the application. An application that meets the invitational priorities does not receive a competitive or absolute preference over other applications.
- Q7. *May more than one Center at an institution submit applications for the NRC/FLAS competition?
A. Yes. It is allowable for more than one Center at an institution to submit applications. Each center's application is reviewed by peer review panels who have the relevant expertise to evaluate each Center's application.

Application Content, Page limits

- Q8. *Are institutions applying for both National Resource Centers and FLAS Fellowship funding permitted a longer page limit than institutions applying for a grant under only one program?
A. No. Narrative page limits are 50 double-spaced, single-sided pages for single institution applications and 60 double-spaced pages for consortia applications, regardless of whether they are for undergraduate or comprehensive NRC funding or FLAS fellowships or both. Please see the Closing Date Notice.
- Q9. *Are consortia with more than two members permitted a longer page limit than two-member consortia?
A. No. All consortia must comply with the 60 double-spaced pages for the project narrative.
- Q11. *Do the four appendices count against the page limit?
A. No.

Application Content, FLAS

Q12. Are undergraduate students eligible to receive FLAS fellowships?

- A. Yes. Changes made to Title VI of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended (HEA) by the Higher Education Opportunity Act of 2008 allows for FLAS awards to be given to meritorious undergraduate students who are studying a Less Commonly Taught Language (LCTL) – which is defined here as any language other than English, Spanish, German, or French – and who are at the intermediate or advanced level of study.

I. Funding / Budget

Q13. How much money should we request for an NRC grant?

- A. Your requests should align with the amounts announced in the Federal Register notice.

Q14. What information does US/ED consider when selecting applications for new FY 2014 NRC and FLAS grants?

- A. US/ED considers: (1) the information in each application, (2) the readers' scores and comments resulting from the peer review of the applications, and (3) any other information relevant to a criterion, priority, or other requirement that applies to the selection of applications for new grants.

Q15. How will decisions about continuation funding be made?

- A. Grantees are required to submit annual performance reports on time to the International Resource Information System (IRIS) that describe the projects' accomplishments, GPRA data, and budgetary status. These reports assist IFLE staff in determining continuation funding. Although we estimate the funding levels for all four years of the grant at the time of the initial grant award notification, the amount of funding received in Years 2, 3 and 4 of the grant might be adjusted, based on several considerations such as: (1) timeliness of submitting performance reports, (2) evidence in the reports that you have made substantial progress toward meeting original grant objectives, (3) program officers' review and analysis of report data to determine whether the project is meeting its intended goals and targets, (4) information from site visits, such as programmatic or fiscal findings, (5) the congressional appropriation of funds for the programs, and (6) A-133 audit information that IEPS might receive regarding a specific grant.

Successful applicants will receive instructions for submitting electronic performance reports through IRIS soon after their grants have been awarded. To view the NRC and FLAS reporting screens, please visit the IRIS web site at:

<http://iris.ed.gov/iris/pdfs/NRC.pdf>

http://iris.ed.gov/iris/pdfs/FLAS_director.pdf

http://iris.ed.gov/iris/pdfs/FLAS_fellow.pdf

Q16. Is there a matching requirement for the NRC or FLAS program?

- A. No. There is no matching requirement for either of the programs. This is why applicants should not include Section B of the ED 524 form in their applications. If you do and you are recommended for funding, the Center and the host institution will be held accountable for the money reflected on that form. This is different, however, from discussing the institutional commitment to the proposed project and citing the fiscal and human resources throughout the Project Narrative, for example, including a table to show the amount of funds the institution committed to language instruction over a specified time period.

Q17. Are we allowed to include project evaluation costs in our NRC budget request and is there any limitation on the amount?

- A. Including project evaluation costs in the NRC budget is appropriate and allowable. Applications should request an amount that is reasonable and justifiable in terms of the overall project scope and total budget request.

II. Application Submission

Q18. How many copies of an application should we submit?

- A. Applicants are required to submit an original application and two copies. The original application stays in the program office and the copies are read by the peer review panel. Because each application is evaluated by three reviewers, the program office would appreciate receiving a total of one original plus three copies.

Q19. Is an exception ever made for an application postmarked after the closing-date?

- A. No. Applications must be submitted in accordance to the Application Transmittal guidelines. There are no exceptions

APPLICATION PROCESSING: (These procedures are described in the Education Department General Administrative Regulations (EDGAR) §75.215-236.)

Q20. What happens to my application after I have sent it to the US/ED Application Control Center?

- A. The Application Control Center processes all applications and then sends them to the IFLE. IFLE program officers screen all applications for eligibility, completeness, and application type, world area focus, thematic focus, etc. We then randomly assign all eligible applications to the expert review panels for the external "peer review" process.

The panels of experts read and score each eligible application. IFLE establishes the funding slate for new FY 2014 grant awards based on reviewers' scores and comments. The funding slate is reviewed by various U.S./ED officials, with final approval by the Secretary of Education. Once recommendations are approved and Congressional notifications are done, IFLE issues the grant award notifications (GANs).

Q21. What happens to my application if US/ED finds it to be ineligible?

- A. It is not evaluated. Section 75.216 of EDGAR prohibits US/ED from evaluating an application if it does not meet the program eligibility criteria or does not otherwise comply with application requirements. If ineligible, a copy of the application is returned to the applicant with a letter explaining why it was not evaluated.

III. Application Evaluation

Q22. Who evaluates the applications submitted for the competition?

- A. Each application is evaluated by panels of reviewers, which include experts, from outside US/ED who represent a variety of disciplines. The experts are required to use the program statute and regulations, the program selection criteria, and any priorities and other requirements that have been published in the Federal Register as guidance in reviewing the applications. The review panels provide written comments and scores to support their evaluations about the quality, significance, and impact of the proposed project. IFLE provides the reviewers' comments to all applicants after the competition peer review is over.

Q23. What criteria do the reviewers use to evaluate an application?

- A. Reviewers score each application using the selection criteria published in the Federal Register as part of the program regulations. Reviewers use the Technical Review Form that is included at the end of this application to record their comments and scores each selection criterion. Reviewers are instructed to use only the published criteria and to base their evaluation strictly on information provided in the application.

Q24. How long does it take US/ED to complete the review process?

- A. Given the compressed time schedule for the FY 2014 competitions, we anticipate completing the peer reviews in one week and then completing the other processes within three weeks.
