Medical testing

This is a mock form that represents the medical testing that will be taking place during this study. The medical testing will include an oral temperature reading, two nasal swabs and one oral swab collection. Additionally, participants will be asked to breathe out completely, breath in as much as possible, then seal their lips around a disposable mouthpiece, and cough. They will be asked to cough hard using as much of the air in their lungs as they can. We will record the sounds that the coughs make, and we will collect the airborne particles produced while coughing. Participants will be asked to provide a total of six coughs.
