Newsletter article:

In the past few years, EGRP has been exploring new ways to enhance communication with our extramural research community. Our Cancer Epidemiology Matters blog, Twitter account, and this newsletter allow us to deliver information about funding opportunities, recent publications, relevant resources, emerging research areas, EGRP activities, and more in several different formats.

To ensure that we are meeting the information needs of our readers, we are conducting a survey of individuals who receive updates from us. The survey will gather information about the preferred format and frequency of EGRP communications, topics of interest, respondents' use of online media and technologies, and of course suggestions for changes or improvements to EGRP communications.

The survey will be open for 3 weeks, from January__ to February __, 2015. It should take approximately 10 minutes to complete. If you have questions about the collection, storage, and security of survey responses, please see our privacy policy or email us at nciepi@nih.gov.
