The Railroad Retirement Act (RRA) provides for the payment of a supplemental annuity to an employee annuitant who meets certain eligibility requirements. Under section 2(h)(2) of the RRA, the supplemental annuity is reduced by the amount of a private pension an employee receives from a railroad employer that is attributable to the employer's contributions.

A private railroad pension is defined in 20 CFR 216.42 of the Railroad Retirement Board's (RRB) regulations. Two types of plans qualify as private railroad pension plans under this definition: defined benefit plans and money purchase plans.

The RRB is requesting information about any pension plan that <Railroad Name> maintains for its current or former employees to determine if benefits from the plan will cause a reduction to the supplemental annuities of covered employees. Our authority for requesting this information is contained in 20 CFR 209.2 of the RRB's regulations.

Please complete Form G-88r, Request for Information About New or Revised Employer Pension Plan, for each pension plan and return the completed form, along with a copy of the plan or summary plan description, to:
