High School Longitudinal Study of 2009

The second follow-up of the High School Longitudinal Study of 2009 (HSLs:09) is now underway! This exciting study is being conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), with data collection being carried out by RTI International. It is a national study of young adults' plans and activities beyond high school, including education and employment experiences. HSLs:09 is particularly interested in learning how young adults make choices regarding their education and careers, with a special focus in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) education and career choices.

In addition to survey responses, we collect financial aid, student data, and related information from institutions and other sources such as admissions testing agencies, student loan databases and other federal databases.

Why is the study being conducted?

HSLs:09 follows a group of young adults to understand the wide range of pathways related to education and employment as they move beyond high school. Because these young adults are being followed over time, HSLs:09 provides an excellent basis for understanding a number of important topics including, but not limited to the following:

- What influences young adults to take STEM courses and pursue STEM careers?
- What factors influence whether young adults decide to enroll in college and complete a college degree?
- How do the characteristics of high schools and colleges influence decisions young adults make about their lives?
- How do individual characteristics and background experiences influence success in school and work?

Who is conducting the study?

The second follow-up of HSLs:09 is being conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) in the U.S. Department of Education's Institute for Education Sciences, with data collection being carried out under contract by RTI International, a nonprofit research organization based in North Carolina. The study is conducted under the authority of the Education Sciences Reform Act (ESRA) of 2002 (20 U.S.C. § 9543), which authorizes NCES to collect and disseminate information about education in the United States.

What is involved?

We are asking that selected young adults complete a 35-minute survey that will focus on the transition from high school to further education and the workforce. The survey covers topics such as:

- influences on young adults' decisions about education beyond high school and work
- factors that lead young adults to study or work in fields of math, science, and technology
- educational aspirations and expectations
- preparation and plans for the young adult's college costs and financial aid
- background information.

Do I have to participate?

Participation in HSLs:09 is entirely voluntary; however, the participation of every young adult in the sample is important to ensure the completeness and accuracy of results.

Will the responses of participants be kept confidential?

NCES is required to follow strict procedures to protect personal information in the collection, reporting, and publication of data. All individually identifiable information supplied by individuals or institutions may be used only for statistical purposes and may not be disclosed or used in identifiable form for any other purpose, except as required by law (20 U.S.C. § 9573). The data will be used in analyses to understand young adults' participation in further education and work beyond high school.

We have implemented strict procedures to protect provided information:

- All electronic data are maintained in secure and protected data files, and all personally identifying information is kept in files separate from the descriptive information.
- No data released to the general public identify individual respondents.
- All project staff with any access to study data are liable to severe fines and imprisonment for any disclosure of individual responses.
- These procedures comply with all applicable federal laws.

When will the data for the study be collected?

Data collection for the second follow-up field test of HSLs:09 will begin in spring 2015. Additional plans include collecting college transcripts and financial aid and related information from institutions and other sources such as admissions testing agencies, student loan databases, and other federal databases.

What happens to the results?

Results from the current study will be posted on the HSLs:09 website as soon as they are available. Results will be presented in summary form only; no individual results will be published. Publications from previous studies are available on the HSLs:09 website at <http://nces.ed.gov/surveys/hsls09/>.

How do I participate?

You may complete the HSLs:09 survey in one of two ways:

1. Online.

Go to the study website at <https://surveys.nces.ed.gov/hsls09/>. Simply enter your Study ID and password and select LOGIN.

2. By telephone.

If you prefer to complete the HSLs:09 survey by telephone, call (877) 282-HSLs (877-282-4757) to speak with a professional interviewer.

IF OUTBOUND CALL AND NOT ALREADY MENTIONED, READ: Hello, this is _____. I am calling for the U.S. Department of Education about the High School Longitudinal Study of 2009 that follows a group of young adults beyond high school.

Recently, we sent you material about the U.S. Department of Education's High School Longitudinal Study of 2009 (HSLs:09). This survey is being conducted to better understand the education and employment experiences of young adults beyond high school. As a token of our appreciation, you will receive a <<INC_AMOUNT>> check once you complete the survey. Have you had a chance to read the material?

If yes, read the material:

(Good.) The survey takes about 35 minutes and may be monitored or recorded for quality assurance purposes. Your participation is voluntary and will not affect any aid or other benefits that you may receive. You may decline to answer any question or stop the survey at any time. If you have any questions about the study, please let me know. May we begin the survey now?

(You can contact the study's director, Dan Pratt, at 1-877-282-4757. For questions about your rights as a study participant, please contact RTI's Office of Research Protection at 1-866-214-2043.)

If no, did not read the material (or did not receive it):

(At your request we can remail the material to you.) (If you can bear with me for a moment, I am required to read the following information about your rights as a participant.) The HSLs:09 survey takes about 35 minutes and may be monitored or recorded for quality assurance purposes. Your responses, combined with other information (such as admissions test data, college enrollment and financial aid data, and other federal databases), may be used only for statistical purposes and may not be disclosed, or used, in personally identifiable form for any other purpose, unless otherwise required by law. (You are one of approximately <number> students who will be taking part in this study.) In addition to your survey responses, we collect college financial aid, student records, and related information from postsecondary institutions you have attended (if any) and sources such as college student loan databases and admissions testing agencies.

Your participation is voluntary and will not affect any aid or other benefits that you may receive. You may decline to answer any question or stop the survey at any time. The risk of participating in this study is small and relates to data security. However, there are strict security procedures in place. If you would like us to remail the material to you, please let me know. May we begin the survey now? (You may contact the study's director, Dan Pratt, at 1 877-225-8470. For questions about your rights as a study participant, please contact RTI's Office of Research Protection at 1-866-214-2043.)

 <address> Study ID: [ID_Fill]
 <city> <state> <zip> Password: [PW]

Dear <name>:

Thank you for your ongoing participation in the High School Longitudinal Study of 2009 (HSLs:09). As you may recall, HSLs:09 is conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) of the U.S. Department of Education (OMB control # 1850-0852). [Your/StudentName's] voluntary participation, and the participation of other young adults like [him/her/you], has helped to make HSLs:09 a great success and has provided valuable data about young adults' experiences in and out of school.

This important research study follows the same set of over 23,000 young adults as they move from high school to the work force or further schooling to understand what factors influence their learning and development.

As we prepare for the next phase of HSLs:09, which will begin in 2016, we are updating our contact information for study participants. Please update [your/StudentName's] contact information and current educational status. The success of this national longitudinal study depends on having the most up-to-date contact information for all of the young adults involved in HSLs:09.

Please visit our website and use the study ID provided above to complete this information. If you prefer, you may fill out the enclosed address update form and send it back in the return envelope provided or call us at <tollfreephone>. The update should take approximately 5 minutes to complete. <If panel maintenance incentive: We will send you $<inc-amt> as a token of appreciation for updating your contact information.>

As in prior rounds of HSLs:09, we will ask [you/StudentName] to complete a questionnaire, and [your/his/her] ongoing participation in HSLs:09 is critically important to the study's success. If you have any questions about HSLs:09 or about updating [your/StudentName's] contact information, please call the HSLs:09 help desk at RTI, toll-free, at <tollfreephone>.

NCES is authorized by Federal law (20 U.S.C., § 9543) to conduct HSLs:09. Data are being collected for NCES by RTI and will be used only for statistical purposes and may not be disclosed or used, in identifiable form for any other purpose except as required by law (ESRA 2002, 20 U.S.C., § 9573). We thank you in advance for your help and greatly appreciate your continued support of this important research!

Sincerely,

Dan Pratt

Panel Maintenance Email Text

Dear <NAME>:

In the <IF F1FS RESPONDENT: spring of 2012><and><IF F1FT NONRESPONDENT: fall of 2009>, [you/your son/your daughter] participated in the High School Longitudinal Study of 2009 (HSL:09). HSL:09 is conducted by the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) of the U.S. Department of Education (OMB control # 1850-0852). As you know, this important research study follows the same set of over 23,000 young adults beyond high school, as some enter the work force or further schooling, to understand what factors influence their learning and development. Your/<StudentName's> voluntary participation, and the participation of other young adults like [you/him/her], has helped to make HSL:09 a great success and has provided valuable data about young adults' experiences in and out of school.

Recently, we sent a letter asking for your help updating contact information for study participants. If you have already completed this update, we thank you! If you have not yet had an opportunity, this is a friendly reminder to please spend about 5 minutes to update this information at your earliest convenience. We sincerely appreciate your help with this important effort!

<If panel maintenance incentive: As a token of our appreciation, we will send you $<inc-amt> for updating your contact information.>

Please visit the website below and use the study ID provided to update [your/<StudentName>'s] contact information. We appreciate your continued support of HSL:09.
