Dear

The NIOSH Office for Total Worker Health (TWH) is already having a busy 2016, as I am sure you are. The National TWH Agenda is in the final stages of development and changes to the Workforce Development Framework will reflect the final Agenda. At the last Directors update call, I discussed the possibility of having a workshop or colloquium in late 2016 or 2017 to consider the next steps in building capacity for a TWH trained workforce. We are hoping to follow up with a special workforce development session at the 2018 Symposium. In preparation for these planned meetings, I would like to inquire if you currently have or will be developing a TWH course, certificate program, academic degree program, continuing education program, or incorporating TWH topics in existing courses or seminars. As a follow up to the training questions below, I will develop a listing of courses and programs and will be happy to share for future discussions and for planning the workshops.

Please answer the questions below to help us identify training opportunities to equip occupational safety and health professionals with the knowledge, skills and abilities to prevent worker injury and illness and to advance worker health and well-being. You may email it back to me at ahc0@cdc.gov.

Again I appreciate you taking the time to provide this important TWH training information.

Best Regards,

Adele
