5. The matrix below lists different types of information in the rows and different sources of information in the columns. Please indicate what types of information you look for when selecting PPE and what resources you use to obtain this information by checking all applicable cells in the matrix. Please explain any responses of "other" in the spaces provided below. Definitions of key terms are provided below.

Definitions: - Voluntary standard: Standards developed by non-governmental standards developing organizations, such as the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), ASTM International, or the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA). - Laws and regulations: Legal requirements, including standards, related to PPE design or use. Some voluntary standards have been adopted in laws and regulations. - Level of conformity assessment: The method used to ensure that a product conforms with a standard. Methods include government certification, third body testing, or supplier declaration. - Certification body: An organization that conducts conformity assessment and certifies that a product conforms with a standard. - Government agency resources: Many government agencies, such as NIOSH, the Healthcare Infection Control Practices Advisory Committee, the Food and Drug Administration, the U.S. Fire Administration, and the National Institute of Justice, to name a few, provide standards, information, and guidance to assist with PPE selection.
