Since we last talked, how many times have you used the job aid?

When did you typically use the job aid?

Can you walk me through how you used it?

[Researcher will have had the completed job aids sent throughout use. The researcher will use the completed job aids to determine which tract to take when discussing the completed job aids]

When last we talked, you identified the most common hazards found in your work location. [Reference back to those hazards here].

Did you choose to focus on any of these most common hazards while using the job aid?

If yes, which did you choose to address?

Why did you choose to address that hazard?

How did you choose to address it?

Who did you communicate with to do this?

What barriers did you encounter as you were making decisions and making changes?

How did you determine that the changes you made were successful?

What process changed?

Were your colleagues working safer?

Did you become more productive?

Were there any negative consequences for the change you made?

What are your general thoughts at this time about using the job aid?

Did any of the things you did differently help you identify additional hazards? What?

Did using the job aid change the way you performed your workplace examination?

What do you do differently?

Do you see yourself continuing to use the job aid? What are some reasons you would not want to do this? (e.g., money, production, time, etc.).

If you could change one thing about the job aid, what would you change?
