Explanation of Terms:

Prices: Please provide a price for the transaction nearest the beginning of the month indicated in the Current Price Data area. A transaction price is the price for which you actually bought or sold the item.

Price Basis: Price Basis refers to the terms of transaction included in the price. Examples of import price bases include CIF U.S. Port and FOB Foreign Port. Examples of export price bases include FAS/FOB Port, FOB Border, FOB Factory, FAF (Fly Away Factory), and DAF (Delivered at Frontier).

Example: The current price of the imported item increased from $45,000.00 to $47,000.00 due to higher demand and the engine upgrade.

The cost of producing the 3.4 GHz processor is $100 more than the 3.0 GHz processor, but in order to remain competitive in the industry, the manufacturer reduced the price of the improved computer to $2,450.

1. Enter the new price of $2,450 in #2 and update the description under #1.
2. In #5, enter +$100 to represent the increased production cost associated with the faster processor.
