TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION: G263- Stakeholder Training on Examination Practice and Procedure (STEPP) Interest Form

PURPOSE: The Stakeholder Training on Examination Practice and Procedure (STEPP) program is designed to provide external stakeholders with a better understanding of how and why an examiner makes decisions while examining a patent application. The goal of the program is to increase examination procedure transparency, provide perspective on what examiners consider when preparing an office action, and aid in compact prosecution by explaining to external stakeholders how examiners use the Manual of Patent Examining Practice to interpret an applicant's disclosure. The initial interest form allows the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) to gauge the interest from potential course attendees in a given course and to determine the successes/shortcomings of an offered course following a stakeholder's completion of the class.
