Attachment 2c: Special Interest Group Research

Study Notification

Note to Reviewers: Special interest groups may be used to target recruitment. This includes groups or organizations tied to the community of people who use alcohol, cocaine or marijuana, such as drug treatment facilities or community health clinics. Special Interest Group would notify potential participants of the existence of the research study and to provide information about how to contact the investigators. Special Interest Group will not answer any questions about the study, will not ask potential participants if they would like to participate, and will not record contact information of potential participants to give to the investigators.

“You may be eligible to participate in a research study [today/on specified date] if you would like to do so. Researchers from the National Center for Health Statistics are evaluating a questionnaire on impaired driving. Would you mind if I gave your name and phone number to Dr. Willson from the National Center for Health Statistics? Dr. Willson can tell you more about the study and answer any questions you might have. You can then decide whether or not you want to participate.”
