TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION:

Online User Response Survey for Beta Test of Website: EcoService Models Library (ESML)

PURPOSE:

The EcoService Models Library (ESML) is an on-line database that houses descriptions of ecological models which are potentially useful for estimating the production of ecosystem services. Developed under EPA’s Sustainable and Healthy Communities Research Program (SHCRP), the database will be made available to environmental analysts and modelers who are developing decision-support tools or searching for models applicable for specific uses.

The customer satisfaction survey will focus on the extent to which users are satisfied with the current performance of the tool in terms of understandability and user friendliness. Respondents will note their experience with specific ESML capabilities through open-ended questions, which are designed to reveal any potential flaws in usability. Finally, the survey will provide an opportunity for respondents to make specific suggestions for improvement. The survey will be web-based and potential respondents will be provided with a link to the survey.

The results of the survey will be used to identify and prioritize improvements or corrections that are needed, before the website is made publically available.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

The respondents will be users of the ESML database. The user community will include environmental scientists, environmental economists and other technical specialists from EPA, other government agencies, the private sector, non-governmental organizations and academia.
