Are You Our Next Winner?

By Maria Contreras-Sweet,
SBA Administrator

It is no secret that small businesses are the engine of America's economy. Whether it is a family restaurant or a high-tech startup, small businesses create most new American jobs, as well as opportunities for social mobility and community renewal.

That is why every American President since 1963 has dedicated one week, National Small Business Week, to celebrate the achievements and contributions of our nation's small businesses. During the first week of May, the U. S. Small Business Administration will shine the spotlight on entrepreneurs who realized their dreams and transformed lives and communities by growing a successful small business.

We are currently seeking nominations of entrepreneurs and businesses representing a diverse set of backgrounds and experiences to reflect the dynamic face of American small businesses. By nominating yourself or a business in your community, you could give hard-working small business owners the opportunity to receive the national recognition they've earned.

When I accepted the call to serve my country as the SBA Administrator, President Obama asked me to be a voice for SBA and ensure our programs give entrepreneurs the greatest chance to succeed. To that end, I have rebranded SBA as "Smart, Bold, and Accessible." Smart is for integrating technology in how we serve America's small businesses; Bold represents the new foreign markets that we're helping small businesses reach; and Accessible means adopting inclusive strategies so Americans from all walks of life can get the capital, contracts and counseling needed to succeed.

National Small Business Week is an opportunity for the SBA to profile the rich diversity of our country's entrepreneurial heritage and the highlight the breadth of services the federal government offers to be a value-added partner in our small business economy.

Having started three small businesses before joining the President's cabinet – including a community bank that specialized in small business lending – I know firsthand that launching a new venture is a risk-filled journey. It's important that every American with aspirations to start or grow a business knows the SBA is here to help develop and execute a viable business plan. Succeeding as a small business owner takes dedication, strength, and courage. These are the qualities we seek in our National Small Business Week award winners. I look forward to receiving your nominations and hosting our most successful National Small Business Week yet in 2016.

Awards Overview and Table of Contents

As part of National Small Business Week, the U.S. Small Business Administration takes the opportunity to highlight the impact of outstanding entrepreneurs, small business owners, and others from all 50 states and U.S. territories. And in recognizing the changing face of America, the SBA's National Small Business Week awards honor individuals and businesses that reflect our nation's rich diversity.
