

2014 Annual Survey of State and Local Government Finances

The U.S. Census Bureau is responsible for providing information about the nation's state and local governments. The Annual Survey of State and Local Government Finances is one of the tools that is used to collect information on state and local government activity.

State and Local Government Revenue and Expenditures: 2011

Why did I receive this survey?

Authorized by Title 13, U.S. Code, Section 182, the Census Bureau surveys state and local governments annually. The Census Bureau selects about 11,000 governments to participate in the annual survey.

Your response to this survey is important. This information will provide insight about government activity and allow your community leaders the opportunity to make informed decisions. This survey provides the only source of data on state and local government finances including revenue, expenditure, debt, and assets..

Government activity is used in the calculation of the Flow of Funds by the Federal Reserve and represents approximately 20 percent of the U.S. Gross Domestic Product (GDP). This information is often requested by other governments, researchers, and media outlets to inform the public and develop policy for state and local governments.
