

Isle Royale National Park Visitor perceptions of human-moose (Alces alces) interactions

You are being invited to participate in a research study about visitor perceptions of human-moose interactions in Isle Royale National park. There are no known risks if you decide to participate in this research study. There are no costs to you for participating in the study. The information you provide will be used to better understand how people view and interact with moose on the island so that the park staff can better serve and protect their visitors and moose population. The questionnaire takes on average 6 minutes to complete. The information collected may not benefit you directly, but the information learned in this study should provide more general benefits.

Your responses are anonymous. Do not write your name on the survey. No one will be able to identify you or your answers, and no one will know whether or not you participated in the study. Individuals from the Institutional Review Board may inspect these records. Should the data be published, no individual information will be disclosed.

Your participation in this study is voluntary. By completing and submitting the survey back to the researcher, you are voluntarily agreeing to participate. You are free to decline to answer any particular question you do not wish to answer for any reason.
