SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

Pursuant to the savings clause in the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Public Law 107-296, Section 1512, 116 Stat. 2310 (November 25, 2002), the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and its components and offices have relied on preexisting Privacy Act system of records notices for the maintenance of records that concern DHS/United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) immigration application information record systems. As part of its mission, DHS implements United States immigration law and policy through the USCIS processing and adjudication of applications and petitions submitted for naturalization, request for lawful permanent residence, asylum, refugee status, and other immigrant and non immigrant benefits. USCIS also supports national security by preventing individuals from fraudulently obtaining immigration benefits and by denying applications submitted by individuals who pose national security or public safety threats.

USCIS receives and adjudicates petitions and applications for all United States immigrant and non immigrant benefits. This SORN covers the USCIS computer systems associated with processing all immigrant and non immigrant benefits applications and petitions except asylum, and refugee status. The following major computer systems maintain information covered by this SORN: CLAIMS 3, CLAIMS 4, the Redesigned Naturalization Application Casework System (RNACS); the Citizenship and Immigration Services Centralized Oracle Repository (CISCOR), the Interim Case Management System (ICMS), Integrated Voice Response System (IVRS), and the Integrated Card Production System (ICPS). These systems are referred to as the ``Benefits Information Systems'' throughout the remainder of this document.

System Information Use and Collection

Information in Benefits Information Systems includes information provided by the individual on the application and/or petition for an immigration benefits and non-immigrant benefits, and varies depending on the benefit. Additionally, these systems collect DHS transactional data that indicates which steps of the adjudication process have been completed such as an appointment to submit biometrics for a background check, other pending benefits, and/or whether the applicant is suspected of fraudulent activity that could bear on fitness or eligibility for the requested benefits.

Benefits Information Systems share information with many government systems internal and external to DHS. All information sharing is conducted within the parameters of existing Privacy Act of 1974 routine sharing requirements. All sharing is related to the purposes for which the information was originally collected.

In accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974, DHS is giving notice that it proposes to consolidate three legacy record systems: Justice/INS-013 INS Computer Linked Application Information Management System (CLAIMS) (67 FR 64132 October 17, 2002), Justice/INS-031 Redesignated Naturalization Application Casework System (RNACS) (67 FR 20996 April 29, 2002), and Justice/INS-033 I-551 Renewal Program Temporary Sticker Issuance I-90 Manifest System (SIIMS) (66 FR 6673 January 22, 2001) into one DHS/USCIS system of records notice titled, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services Benefits Information System. Categories of individuals, categories of records, and the routine uses of these legacy system of records notices have been consolidated and updated to better reflect DHS/USCIS's immigration application information record systems. This system will be included in the DHS's inventory of record systems.

II. Privacy Act

The Privacy Act embodies fair information principles in a statutory framework governing the means by which the United States Government collects, maintains, uses, and disseminates personally identifiable information. The Privacy Act applies to information that is maintained in a "system of records." A "system of records" is a group of any records under the control of an agency for which information is retrieved by the name of an individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual. In the Privacy Act, an individual is defined to encompass United States citizens and legal permanent residents. As a matter of policy, DHS extends administrative Privacy Act protections to all individuals where the systems of records maintain information on U.S. citizens, lawful permanent residents, and visitors. Individuals may request access to their own records that are maintained in a system of records in the possession or under the control of DHS by complying with DHS Privacy Act regulations, 6 CFR part 5.

The Privacy Act requires each agency, to publish in the Federal Register, a description denoting the type and character of each system of records that the agency maintains, and the routine uses of information contained in each system in order to make agency record keeping practices transparent, to notify individuals regarding the uses to which personally identifiable information is put, and to assist individuals to more easily find such files within the agency. Below is the description of the Benefits Information Systems System of Records.

In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 552a(r), DHS has provided a report of this system of records to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and to Congress.
