

JUSTIFICATION FOR CHANGE

The need for a “No material or non-substantive change” is due to the fact that the original data entry webpage did not include the correct fields for addresses that are outside the US. To correct this, a check box was added to the webpage, “Yes my address is outside of the US.” For those who check this box, the fields for Country and Region/Province come up, and the fields for zip code disappear. For those who do not check this box, the country field is greyed out, the fields for Country and Region/Province are not shown, and the zip code fields remain on the page. Screenshots that show both scenarios are included in this submission. No changes have been made to the information collection process.

It is not anticipated that there will be a change to the overall burden estimates. The estimate of the overall number of individuals who will be accessing the website and supplying their information hasn't changed. However, the addition of the address fields for those currently not living in the US will allow those individuals to enter their complete and accurate addresses. These individuals were taken into account when the original burden estimates were derived, but the data entry fields they would need for their non-U.S. addresses were not included in the original webpage design.
